PLAN EXTERMINATION OF ALL HUNS ON RUSSIAN SOIL

Soviets Rout Nazis In Disorder

MOSCOW
6,000,000 Casualties For Enemy

MOSCOW, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The Red army, following up its successful defence of Moscow, Leningrad and the Caucasus, is turning to a general offensive and is now fighting especially hard to restore the main Moscow-Leningrad connection through Klin, Soviet reports said today.

Pravda, Communist party organ, in a broadcast report said Soviet troops had cut the Moscow-Leningrad road at one point and taken 42 settlements and 75 tanks in a single day.

The newspaper said troops which had retaken Solnetschnogorsk, 31 miles northwest of Moscow and east of Klin, were now throwing the Germans out of other localities and that the Nazi retreat was proceeding in disorder with many hundreds of dead and wounded left behind. Yakhroma was recaptured five days ago, the account added.

RAILWAY CLEARED

The Tikhvin-Volkhov railway soulheast of Leningrad already has been cleared of Germans, Pravda said.

In one village in the Klin district Pravda said the Russians found a report from the commander of the 239th German infantry regiment showing that his unit had lost half of its remaining strength of 600 men in one day.

(In London an authoritative military source said the initiative appeared to have passed definitely to the Russians in the Moscow sector.)

PLAN EXTERMINATION

The Russians said their purpose now is to exterminate the German armies on their soil.

Pravda, Communist party organ, said the Soviet troops driving Hitler's tired, beaten soldiers back from Moscow had destroyed "an entire generation of Nazis."

The Russians claim Hitler has lost 6,000,000 men since his invasion June 22, more than 15,000 tanks, 13,000 planes and 19,000 cannon.

This is the broad picture the Russians paint in claiming the Moscow victory the greatest of the war with Germany:

1—Moscow saved;

2—German efforts to encircle Leningrad smashed;

3—The Nazi drive for vital Caucasus oil supplies hurled back along the Sea of Azov, with German

Gas Rationing Books Ordered

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Dec. 15.—Printing has been ordered of 3,000,000 gasoline rationing books in which various colors will be used to indicate the class of gasoline user to which each is issued.

The color will represent a specified region in Canada in which the ration coupons are issued, it is understood. The ration allowed to each user will depend on classifications of motorists, with doctors, commercial travellers, country clergymen, and others receiving a more generous quota than persons who drive largely for pleasure. Taxi companies will have a special provision. Under the system, a ration book issued to a doctor will have more coupons in it than one issued to an office worker whose motoring is regarded as less essential.

Full Selective Service Coming Power Declares

MONTREAL, Dec. 15—(CP)—Air Minister Power said Saturday the Dominion government proposes to bring about national selective service in an effort to put every man and woman in his most valuable place in the present emergency.

In his address at the annual dinner of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association, Maj. Power said that under the National Resources Mobilization Act passed last year "the government of this Dominion has the fullest authority and jurisdiction to enable it to bring about national selective service, not only of our manpower, but or our woman power also."

"These powers we propose to use in this emergency which confronts us, and in an endeavor to see to it that every man and woman in this country carries on the work which will be of the greatest possible benefit to the state as a whole," he said.

HITLER'S reverses in Russia make it increasingly probable that the main German war effort will be turned elsewhere this winter.

However, as long as Russia adheres to her present intention of hammering at a retreating foe, Hitler will not be able to dig in with a holding force while he transfers the bulk of his offensive power elsewhere. As Maxim Litvinov, the Soviet ambassador, put it in Washington, Russia does not propose to let Hitler sit down or "hibernate."

Russia's continued offensive against the Germans is therefore of the utmost importance to Britain and the United States in their struggle against Japan as well as Germany, even though Russia has not yet declared war with Japan.

That may come later, if the Red

EXPECT TO HOLD STRONG DEFENCE LINE

British Halt Japanese Malaya Drive

SINGAPORE
Nipponese Reinforced In Kedah

By HAROLD GUARD

SINGAPORE, Dec. 15.—(BUP) — Imperial forces were reported today to have halted an attempted Japanese blitz sweep down the Malayan peninsula. Confidence was high that the forces will prove able to hold a strong line indefinitely despite withdrawals from exposed northwestern Kedah.

Strongly reinforced Japanese troops are attacking Kedah which adjoins the Thailand frontier and it was reported that British forces regard their positions there as a dangerous salient which is not worth holding.

A firm, continuous defence line was reported erected across the isthmus of Kra which was expected to stem Japanese attempts to drive south to the approaches to Singapore.

ATTEMPTS FOILED

The Japanese plan of attack, it was said, was on the blitzkrieg model. The Japanese hoped to sweep down the peninsula and bring Singapore itself under quick siege. These attempts, British sources said, have been foiled by the resistance of imperial land and air forces.

Information cannot be disclosed concerning the nature and disposition of Japanese reinforcements in the Malayan zone but the general trend of reports indicated South Malaya can hardly expect to escape an attempted Japanese attack.

British rear guards, both in Malaya and in the Hong Kong defence area, were reported to be destroying all supplies and resources as they fall back.

Warnings were issued officially today to residents of the east and west Malayan coasts and Singapore to prepare themselves for evacuation. All citizens who can were ordered to leave and it was said this should be regarded as final notice.

City Officer Leads Secret Raid Against Europe Coast

By ROSS MUNRO

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Dec. 15. — (CP) — The first Canadian to participate in patrol operations against the Nazis was Lieut. John Gowan, 26, of Vancouver and Edmonton, it was learned today.

Member of a British Columbia infantry regiment of the Canadian 1st division, Lieut. Gowan was attached to a British force which carried out a successful night patrol some time ago on Germin occupied posts somewhere on the European coast. Details of the raid are still military secrets.

When the job was finished the British patrol with its lone Canadian member got back to its boats and returned to England. It had obtained valuable information.

Lieut. Gowan arrived in England with the first Canadian contingent two years ago as a Sergeant. He graduated as a Lieutenant from the Officers' Training School and now is assistant adjutant of his battalion. In civil life he was a salesman for an oil company in Vancouver.

Lieut. John Gowan

OFFICER IS CAPABLE AREA COMMANDANT SAYS

Lieut. Gowan is the son of Mr. H. H. Gowan of Edmonton, and Mrs. L. A. Gowan who is now in Vancouver. He resided here for 10 or 12 years. He attended Garneau school and later finished his studies at the Pacific coast.

While in this city he was employed by the Marshall-Wells Alberta Company, Ltd.

He was a lieutenant in the Edmonton Fusiliers when that unit was under the command of Lt.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., now area commandant.

"He was a bright, diligent, capable officer," said Lt.-Col. Brown on Monday. Lieut. Gowan left here in 1934 for Vancouver where he was employed by the Standard Oil Company prior to enlisting.

Before joining the Fusiliers, Lieut. Gowan was a bugler with the C.O.T.C. in Edmonton for more than a year. His father is battalion musketry officer of the North Edmonton Battalion, Veterans' Volunteer Reserve.

Lieut. Gowan, in 1934, was married to Miss June Maclean, daughter of Neil D. Maclean, K.C., and Mrs. Maclean of 46 St. George's Crescent. They have one child, a daughter, Barbara. Mrs. Gowan and her daughter are at present residing at the home of Mr and Mrs. Maclean.

U.S. SUFFERS HEAVY BLOW

One Battleship, 5 Other Warships Lost At Hawaii

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—(AP)—Navy Secretary Knox reported today the United States battleship Arizona and five other warships were lost in the Japanese air raid Dec. 7 on the Pearl Harbor naval base in Hawaii.

He said 2 officers and 2,638 enlisted were known dead.

Known Japanese losses, Knox said, included three submarines and 41 aircraft.

OKLAHOMA DAMAGED

After reporting to President Roosevelt on his return from a hurried five-day round trip to survey the effect of the raid at first hand, the naval secretary told a press conference that aside from the Arizona, United States ships destroyed included the old target ship Utah, three destroyers—the Cassin, Downes, and Shaw—and also the mine layer Oglala.

Damaged vessels included the old battleship Oklahoma, which capsized but can be repaired.

"The entire balance of the Pacific fleet with its aircraft carriers, its heavy cruisers, its light cruisers, its destroyers and submarines are uninjured and are all at sea seeking contact with the enemy," Knox said.

Quickly he told a questioner that the fleet included battleships as well.

"The Japanese failed," Knox said, in their purpose 'to knock out the United States before the war began."

"NOT ON THE ALERT"

Knox said flatly that the "United States services were not on the alert against the surprise air attack."

A formal investigation, he said, would be instituted by President Roosevelt immediately. In the meantime he said there had been no changes in command.

Taking part in the Japanese attack, Knox revealed, were two-man submarines.

Of the three submersibles known to have been lost, he said one was normal size, one small and the third, which was captured was also a small one.

Aside from those killed, 20 officers and 636 men were listed as wounded.

The ratio of dead was heavy, Knox explained, because some ships rolled over.

"I think the most effective fifth column work of the entire war was done in Hawaii, with the possible exception of Norway," Knox said.

Responding to reporters' questions, Knox said:

He believed between 150 and 300 planes took part in the attack—too many to come from a single aircraft carrier.

The attacks apparently were made only by single-engined planes and apparently none were land-based.

As far as known, none was flown by Germans, and no new weapons of any kind made their appearance.

Knox declined to say whether the navy had known of the existence of the two-man submarines.

DRY DOCKS UNDAMAGED

Dry docks escaped damage, he said, as did all oil storage and other important base facilities.

The secretary said the Arizona went down from a "lucky hit."

(The Arizona was built in the New York navy yard and launched June 19, 1915, a 32,600-ton ship of the Pennsylvania class. Its normal complement was 1,358 officers and men. It carried, according to Jane's Fighting Ships, 12 14-inch guns, 12 five-inch guns and eight five-inch anti-aircraft weapons, as well as three aircraft. It cost $7,425,000.)

ORDER WITHDRAWAL

Hong Kong Under Heavy Pressure

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(CP)—The Japanese have pounded Hong Kong from the land and air for the past two days as British forces on Kowloon peninsula, the crown colony's mainland section, fell back to defend Hong Kong Island, authoritative sources declared today.

The withdrawal, they said, was ordered according to plan and "still is going on."

One potential source of relief for the colony was a Chinese attack on the rear and flanks of the Japanese on the mainland, but the authorities here said they had no information on that operation beyond Chungking advices that a fierce assault is in full swing against the Japanese in the Tamshui area, north of Hong Kong.

DOROTHY THOMPSON
Utmost Canada, U.S. Effort For Victory Is Need, Says Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(CP)—Dorothy Thompson told the Canadian people Sunday night that no opportunity for recovery would be left to the embattled allies should they lose the war to the Axis. She forecast the utmost effort of Canada and the United States to win.

The columnist, speaking over the network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, said that in other wars it had been possible to contemplate defeat with the knowledge that recovery was possible, but that "no such possibility will be left to us if we lose this war."

It was the Germanic powers' intention, Miss Thompson said, "to make the Americas again a colony of the old world," after the old world has been "brought under their complete control, politically, militarily and economically."

"The war of independence which gave us the chance to make of the United States a great nation; the statue of Westminster and the rise of the British Commonwealth which has been turning a colonial empire into a free federation would, were we to lose this war, be cancelled as though they had never been," she said.

GERMAN MASTERS

Canada and the United States would be systematically colonized by the Germanic world. East Asia would be left to the Japanese, and North and South America become the new colonies of Europe . . . we would be incorporated in the new order of master races and slave races, master nations and slave colonies.

Miss Thompson declared the nations now fighting the Axis menace "have much with which to reproach themselves."

For years, she declared, "We have been able to see the spectre before us. Yet we were dilatory, slow to abandon comforts, mentally lazy, unwilling to search our own souls, unwilling ruthlessly to tear out the dead wood in our own social and economic systems and unwilling to face the fact that we should all have to live and work again as

ROME, Dec. 15—(Italian radio received by AP)—The Italian high command today acknowledged loss of two light cruisers in the central Mediterranean.

The communique said the two light cruisers were sunk by torpedoes. It said all crew members were saved.

"Previously Britain had announced sinking of three Italian cruisers in the Mediterranean during the week-end."

The high command also claimed an Italian submarine had torpedoed and sunk a Netherlands destroyer while a second submarine torpedoed a British cruiser in the central Mediterranean.

NOT FORGOTTEN FUND

Will Bring Cheer To Those Men Who Suffered For You

How would you like to spend 23 years in hospital, suffering from wounds received in action in defence of democracy? After giving up your all, risking even life itself and suffering cruel wounds that refuse to heal, how would you like to think that your fellows, for whom you fought and won, had forgotten you?

In the Military Ward of the University hospital are men who, ever since the Great War of 1914-1918, have been fighting to regain health and strength. They often wonder how those who are going about healthy and well would feel, should they find themselves in a similar position.

Today, they are wondering if they will be forgotten at Christmas.

As usual at this season, The Bulletin has opened its columns to receive donations to The Not Forgotten Fund, which has as its sole objective, the provision of a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year for the soldier patients in the University hospital.

ROOSEVELT REVEALS:

Japanese Subs Took Part In First Hawaiian Attack

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—(BUP)—President Roosevelt revealed today that Japanese submarines as well as airplanes participated in the sudden onslaught on the Hawaiian Islands on Dec. 7.

He made the disclosure in a report to Congress on the background of the war with Japan, in which he also revealed that Japan was making protestations of her desire for peace three hours and 40 minutes after the attack began.

The President sent the documented review of Japanese-American relations to Congress as he received a detailed personal report from Secretary of Navy Frank Knox, who returned last night from a flight to Hawaii, where he inspected at first-hand the severe damage sustained there by the fleet and by some bases in the surprise attack a week ago Sunday.

The disclosure about Japanese submarine participation in the initial attack on Hawaii came in a section of the President's message setting forth the time-table of events of Dec 7. "The actual air and submarine attack on the Hawaiian islands," he said, began at 1:20 p.m. Washington time.

Mr. Roosevelt said that at 5 p.m., Washington time that day—three hours and 40 minutes after the Japanese attack had started—the Japanese minister for foreign

Soviets Sure Winter To Aid Brave Defence

By A. T. STEELE

KUIBYSHEV, Dec. 15. — Heaven help the poor soldier who is ordered to go over the top in weather like this. The thermometer outside the entrance to my hotel read 34 below, Centigrade, when I ventured forth this morning. Simply looking at the falling mercury almost scared me back indoors for another hour of underwear.

A look at the passing Russians whose eyelids and whiskers were white with frost didn't quiet my apprehensions.

Screwing up courage from the comforting observation by my Russian friends that "real winter hasn't set in yet" and with nostalgic thoughts of tropic Singapore, which I left only a few months ago, I accomplished shiveringly the little task I had marked out for myself — crossing the Volga. The Volga is now a mile-wide ribbon of white and it is no feat to walk across it. The Volga boatman has gone into hibernation.

Not Forgotten Fund To Cheer Last War Vets

happiness brought to veterans, many of whom have answered their last roll call, but whose last Christmas was made happy by gifts from The Not Forgotten Fund. The Bulletin has every reason to feel confident that its readers will heed the call this year as generously as in the past.

In the Christmas time at hand, let the soldier patients share seasonal joys with you, through your kindness.

You applauded and cheered these men when they marched proudly in war, as you are doing with the young men going to war today.

Don't let them feel that you are among those to whom Rudyard Kipling referred when he wrote:

Then it's Tommy this, an' Tommy that—
An' "Tommy, 'ow's yer soul?"
But it's "Thin red line of 'eroes"
When the drums begin to roll.

Show the gallant lads that your applause, your cheers, were genuine.

DO NOT FORGET THEM

The Not Forgotten Fund is an indispensible today as ever in the past. The Community Chest cannot take over the work. Its funds, raised in a recent campaign, were for work in 1942 and therefore cannot be used in 1941. Thus, if the soldier patients are to be given comforts and consideration at Christmas, it will be through The Not Forgotten Fund.

Public and private chests are being opened and funds are being spent lavishly by most of the new fighting forces. But don't forget the lads who have been "over there" and who have felt the good fight on many battlefields.

Remember, no donation is too large; none too small. Send your contribution today to The Bulletin and it will be acknowledged in these columns.

British Sink Big Italo Transport

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(CP)—British submarines were credited today with sinking a 12,000-ton ship believed to have been an Italian transport and with damaging or destroying a half-dozen smaller vessels, two of which, the admiralty said, were picked off in the harbor of Candia in German-occupied Crete.

Other results achieved in submarine attacks on Axis Mediterranean supply lines were listed as follows:

An Italian ship of the Ramb class damaged by torpedoes. (Lloyd's register lists four ships in this class, all of about 3,660 tons. Seizure of one of the group, the Ramb IV, was claimed by British last July, while another, the Ramb I, was reported sunk by the British cruiser Leander in March.)

Two supply ships of medium size attacked while under the protection of a destroyer and one damaged by a torpedo hit.

A medium-sized supply ship, a schooner and a caique (small fishing boat) sunk by gunfire.

Loss Of Warships Will Be Probed

LONDON, Dec. 15—(CP)—Morning papers today published reports from Singapore forecasting an "exhaustive" inquiry into loss of the battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse to Japanese airmen forces last week. They said the inquiry would be aimed at establishing why the ships lacked air support.

looking the island city of Victoria and the Kowloon plains across about one mile of water.

The authorities said lighter guns are being used to defend Hong Kong against attack from across the narrow channel but that the biggest guns—some of which have been described as 18-inchers—probably are mounted for use against sea attack and could not be used successfully against the Kowloon threat.

A Reuters dispatch from Singapore at almost the same time said: "There now is no doubt here that Kowloon on the Chinese mainland opposite Hong Kong is in Japanese hands."

MALAYA WITHDRAWAL

In the fighting in Malaya, a British official said there had been a "slight withdrawal" of British troops as "very heavy fighting" progressed in the Kedah sector, northwest of Singapore.

Casualties on both sides may be severe, he said.

He said the Japanese had landed on the east side of the Kra Isthmus and had crossed it to enter Burma. Their success in cutting the Malay peninsula, he acknowledged, would affect air communication between Burma and Singapore because of airfields involved.

(The Japanese landing thus was from the Gulf of Siam above the landings directed at Singapore. At that point, the Kra Isthmus, which links Malaya with the Asiatic mainland, is only some 50 miles wide.

NO PROGRESS REPORT

(The vinicity of the Japanese landings is about 500 airline miles south of Rangoon, Burma's chief port and the Indian Ocean gateway for China's supplies over the Burma road.)

The British informant said he had no information about progress of the Japanese in Burma.

A Japanese communique appearing here claimed capture of "an important air base in western Malaya," but there were no details to amplify this.

Russians Open Full Offensive Against Nazis

forces now surrounded at Tagan-rog.

In London observers speculated on the possibly desperate situation of two German salients north and south of the capital, which might be subjected to devastating flank attacks in the areas around Tikhvin on the north and Kharkov on the south.

The army organ, Red Star, thus exhorted Soviet forces:

"It is necessary to finish the enemy and administer such a blow that he will never be able to rise again. Complete extermination of Hitler's hordes, the complete extermination of every German occupant to the last man is our objective."

HEADLONG FLIGHT

Specifically, Pravda said today the Russians, driving southward and southwestward from Tula, had recaptured 32 more villages in that area. The newspaper said the Nazis had abandoned great quantities of material in a retreat there which at times was headlong flight.

The Red army now claims to have recaptured the railway station at Uzlovaya, 40 miles southeast of Tula—which is 100 miles south of Moscow—and Stalino, west of Tula, and Verkhove, northeast of Livny after day-long battling.

Verkhave is in the Orel sector, about 200 miles south of Moscow, where the Soviet radio has claimed the Russians have taken 400 towns and villages.

A 25,000-ton German troop transport ship is reported to have been sunk by a Russian naval unit in the Black sea.

army is able to inflict a major defeat on Germany. It is to be noted that Litvinov referred to Japan as the "common enemy." Apparently Russia's plan is to devote her entire effort in the west for the present and throw her weight against Japan later, if all goes well.

The Soviet view, as expressed by Litvinov, is that Hitler after all is enemy No. 1 of all the Allies and if he is beaten his partners in the gang" also go down with him. Hence Russia argues that she can do more service to the common cause by keeping after Hitler than by dividing her war effort.

There has been so far no outward sign that either Britain or the United States are inclined to dispute this view. In fact, London reports that Britain and Russia plan a conference at Moscow to map out common strategy among Britain, Russia, the United States and their Allies, and to co-ordinate the efforts of all.

CHIEF BRAKE ON NAZIS

Russia, then, stands as the chief brake on Hitler's expected next move in Europe, Africa or the middle east. There have been various guesses as to where he will attempt to strike. The common one is in North Africa through the French colonies to offset the Axis reverses in Libya. If this is accompanied by requisitioning of the French fleet, increased forays in the Atlantic might be expected, with the object of preventing American reinforcements being sent from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

POSSIBLE SPAIN MOVE

In this connection, some observers see the possibility of a German move through Spain into North and West Africa. Spain, while neutral, is tied in deeply with the Axis.

Another possibility which has been repeatedly discussed and still exists is that Hitler, having been frustrated in southern Russia, may try to find an easier route to the Caucasus and the middle east through Turkey. The latter, which has been under German pressure, is plainly uneasy. It may be significant that Turkey has chosen this moment to notify the United States that she intends to remain neutral.

One reason why observers feel reasonably certain that Hitler will move in a new direction is the necessity of restoring some of his damaged prestige. Failure to take Moscow alone, after Germany's exultant boasting, was a serious defeat.

Hitler may be expected to try to make good his statement on Germany's entry into the new phase of the war that "the Axis always strikes the first blow."

A WEEK after the fall of the first Japanese bomb at Pearl Harbor, the United States has shaken down to its grim role and began to fight back effectively.

It is rallying all its fighting or working manpower, old and young, for service as needed. It is mustering the total strength of its material resources so vast that the aggregate staggers imagination.

And it has, time to look abroad as the whole western hemisphere rallies with it to meet the Axis challenge and to speculate on the fact that only two nations of strategic importance in the vast and intricate war pattern are merely onlooker, Turkey and Eire.

POSITION OF NEUTRALS

How long Turkey can remain aloof only the Axis master minds in Berlin know. It may be next on Hitler's conquest schedule, now that Russia had blocked his search for oil.

Spain and Vichy France can be called as only technically non-belligerent. Both are playing the Axis game.

It seems merely a question of time and anti-Axis strategy before Russia will strike. Maxim Litvinov, the Soviet ambassador to Washington, describes Japan as the "common enemy."

All of this leaves, in tragic isolation, Eire, non-combatant possessor of the prime geographical key to what might happen in the Atlantic now that the Pacific has been fenced to a war theatre.

Nor can Eire look across the Atlantic for sympathy if she declines to Britain use of coastal bases that can prove crucial in the fight against an anticipated intensified Nazi submarine attack on British-Atlantic life lines.

The United States herself is at war. Americans of all national backgrounds, including those whose forebears came from Ireland, can not easily condone acts of commission or of omission by any people when those acts aid their Axis foes.

Nor can Eire's position fail to come in for new consideration in both Washington and London now.

What Eire as well as Turkey, The Emerald Isle has a strategic importance utterly out of proportion to its size, population or natural resources.

allies, and so that there shall be no chink in the armor of the democratic front.

"We will mobilize manpower for the greater production of munitions and food so as to be an asset to our friends and allies.

"We will organize our women to work in the arsenals, the shops and the factories."

Canada faced greater danger than she ever had before. The Pacific coast was "in the front line of battle." The days of assurance of easy victory were past.

"But past also are the days of panic; left, only a grim realization of the danger and a grimmer determination to face it prayfully, but boldly and above all unitedly," Maj. Power said.

"Before the imminent peril which confronts us we can do nothing else."

SELECTIVE SERVICE TO TAKE SOME TIME

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Dec. 15—Development of a new selective service system within six weeks or two months, it was learned today. National war service officials have been giving thought to the machinery necessary to handle the policy, outlined in Montreal Saturday by Hon. C. G. Power, by which man-power will be organized for the defence of Canada, for production of munitions and food, to regulate a flow of women into essential war jobs.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Ministers of the National Defence group his cabinet colleagues no cause for alarm. Under these circumstances, it fell to Mr. Power to make the first official announcement of selective service policy on a wider scale than ever attempted in this country.

AIR FORCE PRIORITY

Mr. Power's speech indicated emphatically that the No. 1 military priority was air force, and that three times the number of Canadian air crews would be raised and trained within the coming year. This was the first official hint of military plans for 1942.

Simultaneously with broadening of war service policy, which has been quickened by the Japanese crisis though it was under consideration before war spread to the Pacific, reports were current that important cabinet changes are pending. One report was that Hon. Pierre Casgrain will be appointed a judge in Quebec and his successor as secretary of state may be the present Labor minister, Hon. Norman McLarty. Humphrey Mitchell, chairman of the National War Labor Board, is mentioned as the new labor minister.

UNDER THORSON

The new national selective service organization will be handled by the War Services Department under Hon. J. T. Thorson, it was expected. As a home front war job comparable to the new economic controls in size and complication, the selective service organization will undertake to examine the position of thousands more usefully. But this must be done, an informed source said, so that no disruption of war work results. But details of the machinery for implementing the new policy are not available.

Auto Manufacture May Be Prohibited

By C. R. BLACKBURN

OTTAWA, Dec. 15—(CP)—Prohibition of passenger automobile manufacture except for the most essential purposes is unofficially reported to be under consideration by the government, along with other measures designed to throw Canada's full industrial and material resources into the war effort.

Reports are current in Ottawa that the great motor manufacturers in the United States are also considering a virtual stoppage in pleasure car manufacture so their plants may go into aircraft and other forms of war production.

In addition, it is anticipated that announcements with respect to mobilization of manpower will be made before or about the time parliament reassembles.

Former Newsman Is McLarty Secretary

OTTAWA, Dec. 15—A former newspaperman, Andrew Hamilton, son of Hon. C. M. Hamilton, Regina, has taken the post of secretary to Hon. Norman McLarty, labor minister. Mr. Hamilton formerly worked on the Toronto Globe and Mail and the Windsor Star.

SEEK DECISIVE BATTLE

British Make New Advances In Libya

CAIRO, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Further gains southwest of Gazala were announced by British headquarters today as the Libyan campaign apparently turned into a race by the Imperial forces to compel the Axis armies to fight a decisive battle before they can fall back on new and favorable positions.

British and Indian troops twice were counter-attacked by German tanks and truck-borne infantry during the advance, the communique said, "but both attacks were repulsed, 16 German tanks being destroyed and 70 officers and 350 other ranks being captured."

It said more than 700 Axis prisoners, many of them German, were taken yesterday. Heavy new material blows dealt the German forces were listed as the capture of seven guns, three tanks and a supply dump containing 70,000 gallons of fuel and the destruction of six Axis planes by ground forces.

Despite confusion attending the German and Italian retreat, Lt.-Gen. Erwin Rommel still was in full control of his forces and their westward movement was orderly.

British forces virtually had encircled Gazala, which is some 100 miles west of the Egyptian border, but they did not know just how many Axis troops were trapped there.

Athlone Urges More Weapons

SOREL, Que., Dec. 15.—(CP)—The Earl of Athlone today urged workers in Canada's war industries to keep increasing output so the armed forces will have weapons to return the blows of the enemy.

His brief speech was made to workers in the huge gun plant of Sorel Industries Ltd. during his second inspection of the factory in 16 months. The plant makes barrels for naval guns and since his previous visit has begun converting scrap metal into 25-pounder guns, complete with carriages.

"I now have had the opportunity of visiting a large number of factories in different places in this country, and I have therefore seen with my own eyes the valuable service rendered by the factory hands of Canada," he said.

"I am told you produced 40 guns last month and are going to turn out 50 this. That is splendid, but you must keep it up and go on adding to the weight of armaments.

"For in your hands it lies to provide the weapons with which alone our sailors, soldiers and airmen can parry the cruel and unceasing blows aimed at them on sea, on land and in the air."

Dorothy Thompson Says Utmost Effort Needed To Win

No Opportunity Would Be Left For Recovery If War Lost By Allied Countries

pioneers and heroes, or never recapture, even for our children, the world of grace, culture and prosperity."

MUST DEFEND HOMES

It required the fall of France and the retreat from Dunkerque to awaken Britain, she said. "It probably needed Pearl Harbor to awaken my countrymen."

Through the battle of Britain, Britain rediscovered herself, Miss Thompson said.

"We, too, Americans and Canadians, we of the new world will also in this war rediscover America. We shall rediscover her in our hearts, defend her with our hands and the wit of our brains, defeat her enemies wherever they may be and admit as comrades in arms in this great war of the peoples all who, like us, fight for their homes and the right to build a decent new world."

Text of Miss Thompson's broadcast to Canada follows:

Men and Women of Canada: It is some months since I have had the pleasure of speaking with you in this manner. The last time I spoke was from England, where I went, I confess, to draw strength for the prospect that even then seemed certain to lie before us.

Now we are all together engaged in a great and mortal struggle. Let none of us have any doubts whatever about the nature of this struggle. It is not over boundaries or over relative balances of power, or over markets, or over any of those issues that in the past have been the causes and motives of war. It is a struggle to determine whether we shall survive as nations, whether we shall live as free communities in a world of other free communities, or whether we shall be the pawns of victors.

HITLER'S AIM

In most wars it is possible to contemplate the possibility of defeat with a degree of equanimity. It is always catastrophe to be defeated, but it is not obliteration. Slowly one can recover and, if one wishes, to challenge the conqueror, rise again as a great nation. But no such possibility will be left to us if we lose this war. It is the firm intention of the Germanic power to make the Americas again the colony of the old world. First, the old world must be brought under their complete control, politically, militarily, and economically, and then the new world is to be made subject again.

The war of independence which gave us the chance to make of the United States a great nation, the statute of Westminster and the rise of the British Commonwealth which has been turning a colonial empire into a free federation would, were we to lose this war, be cancelled as though they had never been. Canada and the United States would be systematically colonized by the defeated world. East Asia would be left to the Japanese, and North and South America become new colonies of Europe.

We would pay tribute to Berlin and Rome out of everything we wrung from the soil or manufactured with our hands and brains. We would be moved from our homes and settled wherever it pleased our overlords. We would be deprived of all weapons with which we might retaliate. We would be incorporated in the new order of master races and slave races, master nations and slave colonies.

In every speech he makes, Hitler spoke of the number of Germans who are crowded upon so and so many kilometers of land, as contrasted with the vast open spaces in the British system and in the Americas. His words and his deeds in Europe give us a perfect clue to his plans. Throughout the world the rich productive industries are to fall into the hands of the Germans and their stooges, and the poor lands and the broken industries, on the small industries dependent upon the great ones, left to eke out an existence for the rest of us.

That is what is already being done in the places conquered. The shares of the greatest French heavy industries and mines are now in German hands. The Poles and other nationalities have been moved off good farms to make place for Germans. The same thing would happen in the Americas. Nothing that a man had built up by his hard toil, for himself, for his family, and for his country, would be secure to him.

A hierarchical structure would be set up, with Germans at the top of it—foreign Germans, sent over as governors—then naturalized Germans, then the various racial groups. And make no mistake about it, Anglo-Saxons would come far down the line, for the revenge in the hearts of this evil regiment knows no bounds whatsoever.

What Hitler considers the sins of the fathers would be visited upon the sons throughout endless generations.

ANGLO-SAXON CULTURE

We are each Anglo-Saxon countries. We are not Anglo-Saxon by blood. The Americas have generously opened their doors for generations to men, of all European stocks who wished to come to the new world and here make a new home. In Canada, a large part of your population is French and of Catholic culture. Yet the dominant ideas upon North American soil have come from Anglo-Saxon tradition, from habits and of thought and habits of behaviour of that breed of men who have never known what it means to have a master. This whole world is now challenged; this whole world is in extreme peril.

We have much with which to reproach ourselves. For years now we have been able to see the specific before us. Yet we have been dilatory, slow to abandon comfort, mentally lazy, unwilling to search our own souls, unwilling ruthlessly to tear out the dead wood in our own social and economic systems, and unwilling to face the fact that we should all have to live and work again as pioneers and heroes or never recapture, even for our children, the world of grace, culture and prosperity.

"HOPED AGAINST HOPE"

In the United States, we, like all the other democracies, have hoped against hope. We have refused that the fall of Britain would be an unmitigated catastrophe for us, so have aided here and now the risk of war. But the larger public has refused to see the inevitability of the developments that have come to a head in the last few days. On the contrary, many among us, and some who are rich, influential and powerful, have conducted campaigns—costing millions—to keep the American people in a state of apathy and with a feeling of false security. The other day we heard their very speeches, almost word for word, flung back at us from the mouth of Hitler in a declaration of war upon the United States.

In the White House a patient and anxious man, once the sunniest man in the world, whose laugh was the delight of thousands, has grown thinner, paler, more haggard, and more profoundly beautiful under the weight of his terrible cares and in clear-sighted apprehensions. He was trying to hold off an enemy, while the enemy spoke through the mouths of prejudiced men, short-sighted or definitely malicious men who could see no enemy nearer or farther than the pale man in the White House.

The spectacle has been one to rive the heart of every patriot, and sometimes bitterness rose into one's very mouth, poisoning one's personal delights, as one saw one's country wrangling on the edge of an abyss.

Yet, today we must put all bitterness out of our hearts. Today we must let bygones be bygones and receive into the fullness of our love and trust all those who, loving America, put behind them what has been, and press forward toward the only goal possible for any of us, rich and poor, ignorant and wise, the goal of victory.

MUST STAND UNITED

Yet, let this be said, and said strongly: If there be any amongst us, on either side of this great frontier that is no barrier but a bond—if there be any amongst us, unwilling to accept the responsibilities of this hour of decision; if there be any who because of personal rancors, desire for revenge, personal ambitions, cowardice, or love of money, should be in any small way or in any large way treasonable to a great and glorious burden of our cause, let them be torn from amongst us. For if thine eye offend thee, it is better to pluck it out; if thine hand offend thee, let it be cut off. For we need single-sighted eyes, fixed only on triumph and it were better to have only one such eye than two which were crossed . . . we need only willing, loving, working, firm hands and none that waver.

Like every other democracy we begin this war with disaster. Like every other democracy we have been unwilling to strike the first blow, and therefore start on war as the victims of a foul, that thrown us to the carpet, like every other democracy we cannot start before we have been beaten down, and must struggle to our feet and, groggy from a foul blow, shake the blood out of our eyes. I do not know whether this is some divine plan in this awful scheme of things that decrees that no nations pertaining may strike before he has been stricken.

And I think sometimes that it is the judgment of the Lord—those judgments which are true, and righteous altogether—that each of us, sunken as we have been in our selfishness and in our pride, following as we have done, the false Gods of prosperity, comfort and self-indulgence, must come to life, and to the realization of the very meaning of life, through some major terrible shock. It took that fall of France and the retreat of Dunkerque to awaken England. It probably needed Pearl Harbor to awaken my countrymen.

"MIGHTY SWELLING WAVE"

Yet, now it is here, and now there comes over each of us as in a mighty swelling wave, the realization of what it is we love, what it is by which we live, and what it is for which we would joyfully die, if by our deaths we save for our children and their children, life, war.

Is she not beautiful, your America, and mine.

She is so vast, so great, so Atlantic and yet so tender. Her very names are dear to us be-yond measure: Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Vermont, Maryland, Florida, Michigan, Indiana, Wyoming, the Dakotas, California, Arizona, Manhattan. He, very rivers are like no other rivers, so sweeping, so deep and sometimes so treacherous: Columbia, St. Lawrence, Mississippi and Potomac.

And she is a mother, America, to make men or break them. She has broken men and made many more. The hard-bitten puritans who made the cool green and white beauty of my home-state, Vermont, and had to wring the state and their livings from stony soil, and trees and debaching backs. The great continent, your west and ours, was not opened from ocean to ocean without heartbreaks and back breaks. The battle for America went on for generations in swamps and forests, over mountains and in deserts. Out of it all grew the American saga of the world's biggest, toughest, hardiest man, Paul Bunyon.

MUST EMULATE PIONEERS

And in breaking or being broken by America we did a lot ourselves. In the United States, we ripped the cover from the prairies and nature revenged herself terribly, blowing away the farmers soil and blowing him into a black-faced bankruptcy. We felled the great trees and delivered the soil to erosion. And now, in our generation the sense of our wickedness has come upon us, and we saw before us but one great task: the rehabilitation of America, giving her back all that previous generations in carelessness or wantonness had thrown away.

But now we must fight for her, as she is—that she may become in future years evermore fair. But we cannot defend her without a great rebirth and a great quickening of the spirit, of the mind and of the very hands. Too long have we been slothful. Overnight we must revive the spirit and the philosophy of the pioneers.

And there must be one motto animating each one of us, on both sides of our frontier: Nothing we are doing is enough. Nothing we shall ever do is enough—until victory and peace. We cannot go on as we have been doing in my country. It is said that our production is increasing vastly, and I know that it is; it is said that some things are ahead of schedule in production; it is said that everything will be done that can be done. And all that is true, as far as the government is concerned. Yet, words like "schedule" and "all possible" are relative. What is possible in a country, anxious, patriotic, but only partly awakened is different from what is possible in a country alive in every cell of its being, passionately working towards salvation.

"TEST OF COMMON MAN"

This war, more than any other war in history, is the test of the common man. For it is not fought merely on battlefields or in the air, or on the oceans and the seas. It is fought day by day in every factory and in every field. The worker, who slows down his work, or lets his wits wander, or thinks to serve his country in an every day tempo of work is an indifferent soldier. The worker who finds that he can extend his speed while increasing his efficiency is fighting for America as surely as Colin Kelly fought at Hawaii.

Nothing impressed me more in England last summer than the steady battle going on at the lathes and beside the furnaces where Britain's workers were turning out in rapid uninterrupted flow the bombs and guns for the armed forces and the defence of the land. The entire system in the shops is one to encourage and reward speed and ability while protecting the less efficient worker who does his best, but whose best is not the best of the very best.

Let me explain what I mean. The British worker has a minimum wage per operation, fixed by agreement between management and the trade union. His interests are continually represented in each shop by a shop council, who takes up with management day by day, all problems and grievances that arise in connection with work. And management always listens to these representatives of the workers, and always tries to find answers to their problems, for Britain has learned through this war that only free men, free workers, who know that they can speak openly with their managers and not expect to be treated impiously or arrogantly will do their best.

WAGE INCREASES

But the minimum wage per operation, which is keyed to average work, increases whenever the operation is competed by any worker in less than the prescribed time. Actually the worker can double the wage of every single operation. Whether he does so or not depends upon himself and his comrades in the shop. He is not driven—he is self-impelled. He is impelled both by his own interest and by the interest of the whole. The British have found that the greatest efficiency does not come out of treating men as though they were machines, but out of the mobilized good will and effort of men who know that they can master the machines, and make the machines work faster and better for them and for England.

The war has brought a new spirit into the workshops of England. It is partly due to the fact the government itself is operating many factories and through carefully selected management has taken great trouble to ascertain just what is the secret of efficient management, and finding that secret they have held what might be considered a new definition of democracy: It is the integration of all free energies, under the emotion of a common ideal, and under the discipline of a common goal.

That new democratic discipline is not imposed from outside: it comes from inside, and it has shown men that they have not known what was in them—what resources of skill, endurance, swiftness and co-ordination, rhythmic effort. And now I will tell you something: War is hell. War is a terrible thing. But there is no greater happiness for any individual than the realization that he is living at the very height of his capacities, for something in which he believes, and which he loves.

"LIVE ON FULL TIME"

In my country, for the last 20 years, most of us have been "unemployed". I do not mean that we have not had "jobs". We have. But they have been "jobs". And we have thought that the secret of happiness was to work as little as possible, so that millions have never realized what great capacities they have within themselves.

In England, men and women have learned that everyone has an unemployed person inside himself. They have realized that everyone was, before the war, living on part time. Now they are living on full time, with all their energies, and this fact has released powers within themselves that they did not know they had.

This is partly because the war has moved the feeling among workmen that they are toiling for the profits of others. They know today that they are working for themselves and for the nation, for today and tomorrow.

When our workers realize that through this war they can not only save America, but through new efforts, new forms of organization of work, new ways of using for the whole people the profits of work, create a new America in a new world, we shall see wheels turning for America as surely as Colin Kelly fought at Hawaii.

And it is the duty of the leaders of our two countries to make it clear here and now, that the great outpouring of effort is not going to die down into ghost towns and unemployment after this war is over. We have re-tooled for the war, and under a great national plan, we are finding ways to integrate capital, labor and management for a common purpose. What has been done for war can be done for peace.

We have America to re-build; to re-build until she fulfills the promise of our great song, America the beautiful, and the patriot's dream comes true: when alabaster cities gleam, undimmed by human tears. The integration of energies that can produce ships and planes and guns can produce homes and farms stocked and tooled, can bring light to the remotest hut, and turn the hut into a cottage; can put the grass back on the prairies and drain the swamps and irrigate the deserts. In war we shall find our way to peace. And peace will come for us and the whole world when we learn the great fact of the twentieth century, that there are no more have-nations, nor have-not-nations, but only well organized and integrated societies and well-organized ones and that the basis of all efficiency and all wealth is the full co-operative work of human beings.

"DONE BY PEOPLE"

I learned another thing in England: Bureaucracies can lose wars, but they never have been known to win them. Bureaucracy is right and necessary in its place, but the creative power in a civilization does not come from them. It comes right out of the people themselves Britain is standing today and facing pridefully "Land of hope and glory, mother of the free". After Dunkerque the great people rose to its feet, shook the sloth from its shoulders, stopped letting the government do it, and began finding things to do, and doing them.

The great tasks of air raid precaution and protection, of fire-fighting, of establishing communal feeding centres to save food and distribute it more equally, of evacuating children, and feeding and housing them, could never have been done by any government alone. They were done by people acting under the initiative of individuals and groups, and thus releasing and capitalizing all the good will and talent that is lying around unused in normal times. Everybody is so busy and active that, as one person remarked to me, "we have very little time to think about the war."

I saw in England the emergence of a new democratic heroism, and a new type of democratic community, based on brotherhood and companionship in arms. It took the bombing of London and Plymouth and Coventry to create it. But it is there, and please God, there to stay. One sees the light of a new age upon the faces of the young R.A.F. fliers, that remarkable new order of chivalry that a volunteer force has created amongst its own members, where rank is not acknowledged according to chevrons and places at mess, but by the intimate respect that each has for companions' skill and heroism. The Battle of Britain has been a struggle in which Britain has rediscovered herself.

We, too, Americans, and Canadians, we, of the new world will also, in this war, re-discover America. We shall rediscover her in our hearts, defend her with our hands and the wit of our brains, defeat her enemies whoever they may be, and admit as comrades in arms in this great war of the peoples, all who, like us, fight for their homes and for the right to build a decent new world.

"WILL HIT BACK"

And all who give themselves with all their hearts will have a stake in the America of tomorrow—a stake exactly proportionate to their effort of today.

There is some terrible significance about the entrance of the United States into this war. And our enemies know it. For the United States is no ordinary nation; it is all nations, gathered together to begin life again on new soil. So through the United States all Europe re-enters the war; millions of men and women of Polish, Czech, Dutch, Belgian, Russian, French origin. The United States alone can fight with 200 per cent patriotism; 100 per cent for the new world that is our home; 100 per cent for the old world which is our parent.

The children of Europe have risen, oh Hitler and Tojo! You have smitten down the old folks! But now you have struck the young. And the young will hit back. Only for a little while, do we step back to gather our broken weapons and forge new ones, too. Soon the arm will be thrown back, and the blow foully delivered last Sunday at Hawaii—the blow against the belt—will be returned. And not below the belt from us: straight on the jaw.

difference in the life of the Russians. To be sure they stick more closely to their thick - walled, double-windowed houses but there are plenty of them in the streets. Scores of youngsters are skiing, skating and sledding. Carts have given away to sleds hauled by steaming, crystalline horses and occasionally you see a dromedary plodding majestically in an aura of vapor over the snow-packed roads.

Many hundreds of Kuibyshev's population went to the city's "locomotive stadium" on Sunday to cheer the physical culture classes, skiing experts, and hockey teams, at the opening of the winter sports season. The event has special significance this year for skiing is now a heavily emphasized feature of the training of vast reserve armies in process of formation in this country.

Everywhere throughout the country sports organizations have been enlisted to train instructors in skiing. These men, in turn, are dispatched to military centres to instruct soldiers and potential soldiers.

Russia learned the value of ski-borne troops in the Finnish war and only last week was given another demonstration of their effectiveness in the fighting inside Moscow. A detachment of troops mounted on skis and carrying automatic rifles was involved in a furious successful counter attack against a six-mile long German wedge which has been driven between Mazhaisk and Narofominsk and constituted a real threat to Moscow's main defenses. The wedge was destroyed.

INFANTRY ON SKIS

Infantry on skis has the advantage of high manoeuverability and speed. It can arrive quickly where least expected and is most effective, when used in large numbers. Russian winter draws troops to roads and settlements making skiers useful for quick raids through forests. The ski army employs ski troops mainly, however, for reconnaissance.

The Russians are highly pleased at the drop in temperature and are hoping the mercury will fall to 40 or 50 below. They are convinced that they can take it better than the Germans and contend they are better prepared to meet it.

Being mainly on defensive, in heated dugouts the Russians are less concerned with the cold than the enemy troops who must come out of their holes and fight not only enemy Russian bullets but sub-zero cold.

Russian officer, Maj. Gen. Vechezarsky, writing in the army organ Red Star urges that Russian units, however, increase instead of diminish their activities during the winter in order to force the Germans to expose themselves as much as possible.

Winter weather, says Vechezar-

The Time Is Short

The distractions of the second world war must not be allowed to divert attention from the victims of the first. The disabled veterans over in the University hospital must be told again, as they are told each Christmas, that they, their services and their sacrifices are not forgotten. It may be that some of them are beyond healing, but none are beyond the cheering influence of this annual reminder of the thought and gratitude and sympathy of the public.

Christmas is only ten days away. Not much time is left in which to send along a contribution to the Not Forgotten Fund. But for so deserving a cause not much time should be needed to bring the fund up to a sufficient figure. Better send in the money today, much or little; and remind the chap next door, in case the matter has slipped his mind.

Three Fronts

The two-front war in Europe and Africa has become a three-front war. The revolt in Yugoslavia has taken on the proportions of an organized, large-scale rebellion. Formidable enough that seven Axis divisions, supported by tanks and aircraft, have been sent there to combat the Serbs.

However they have done it, the "rebels" are now an organized army, with it is to be hoped and supposed a fair amount of equipment. To deal with them German troops will have to be employed. Mussolini's legions having shown a few months ago how poorly they are qualified for the job. This means immediately another diversion from the ranks upon which Hitler must depend if he is to make any headway in Russia or send help to Rommel. Isolated as they are geographically, if the Serbs have or can get "tools" they will stand a lot of beating; the three divisions sent against them may have to be doubled and redoubled.

And what of the example they are setting the other captive nations? If with Mussolini's fleet patrolling their coast and Axis-held countries on every other side of them, the Yugoslavs can strike a blow for their liberation, the peoples in more favorably situated states can follow their lead if they have the will. Now is the time for these peoples to organize themselves, get arms as they can, and take advantage of the growing strain on Axis manpower. The three fronts should become four, five, six, in that many weeks.

The "Grain Of Salt"

Don't believe all you hear, nor all you read, about the war in the Pacific. This is the very timely and much needed advice which President Roosevelt gave to the people of the United States in his broadcast message Tuesday evening. Canadians also should take the advice as addressed to them, for we are subject to the same incessant drum-fire of reports of unknown origin and unguaranteed character.

To point the need of this caution Mr. Roosevelt said that even when he spoke, on Tuesday evening, he did not know the extent of the damage that had been done to United States naval, air force and base facilities at Honolulu. With all the official agents and agencies under obligation to keep Washington fully informed, it was still uncertain what amount of damage had been done on Sunday at the nearest of the points of attack. Only when actual and dependable information could have reached the public, as to what had occurred there and at points much farther removed, is easy to infer.

The vast expanse over which a dozen or more actions have been fought or are being fought simultaneously, the wide water gaps which separate points of attack, and the censorship imposed everywhere by one side or by both, make the central and southern Pacific almost a closed news area. The public, like those who conduct newspapers and news broadcasts, must in these circumstances accept only with reserve reports of happenings in this obscure area unless these bear the official stamp of reliability.

If a report comes from Tokyo, it was not made to spread cheer in anti-Axis countries. If it comes from an unofficial source it may be only a guess.

Defeat, Definite and Sweeping

Russian communiques have been consistently moderate in tone. They have never been boastful. So far as known they have never exaggerated the losses inflicted upon the enemy. Certainly they have never concealed that Russian losses were heavy. And when and where a serious situation developed, as at Tula and Klin, they frankly stated the fact.

But for this background of reliability, the communique issued on Friday would seem fantastic, the figures present so impressive a picture of widespread disaster to the Nazi forces. The invoice of enemy losses from Nov. 18th to Dec. 10th includes 85,000 men, 1,434 tanks, 5,418 trucks, 675 guns, 339 trench mortars, 876 machine-guns. It is added "these figures are incomplete."

This reads like the roster and equipment inventory of a huge and fully mechanized army. These losses were not sustained in aggressive fighting but in defensive tactics, rear-guard actions, and retreat. There is no compensating gain of territory to offset them. They are the price of defeat, not of victory.

Moscow is very positive that what the figures indicate is literally true; that the prongs of the pincers which threatened to squeeze Moscow into submission have been broken and the attempt to capture the ancient capital turned into a "fiasco." As a result the Russians now hold the initiative on the central sector as on the southern; and Hitler has reportedly fled the scene as Napoleon also left his army to shift for itself amid the snow.

Singapore reports that a high percentage of the "Japanese" planes shot down in Malaya were piloted by Germans. Hitler apparently does not consider the Japanese to be really Class A Aryans, since he can't trust them to do their own fighting.

—V—

Edinburgh people have the right idea. They reacted to the sinking of the Prince of Wales by subscribing £10,000,000 to build a successor, and then decided they might as well put up the money for another Repulse as well. Sales of war savings certificates in Canada should take a corresponding jump.

—V—

Berne relays a report, from an unknown source, that Vichy will transfer warships to Italy, for the convoy of Italian transports and troopships in the Mediterranean. Out of respect for Marshal Petain this should not be taken as true unless it is confirmed. That Petain should obey Hitler can be understood, but truckling to Musolini the back-stabber would be an abasement of which no decent Frenchman is capable.

—V—

An official of their organization says Canadian-born citizens of Japanese parentage, who number many thousands in British Columbia, will remain loyal to Canada. It is their misfortune that the calculated treachery of the Government at Tokyo has made it difficult for western people to withhold suspicion from persons of Japanese origin, however blameless their conduct has been. But in Canada, as in the United States, only those who have given, or may give, cause for suspicion are to be interned. The public should not penalize others by discriminatory treatment or abuse.

America's War Declaration A Moving Drama Of Emotions

United States Caught Like All the Rest by Treachery and Sudden Violence

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

So it had come. There was nothing unexpected about it. The apprehension that one had had, waking and sleeping, for two years now: more than apprehension, the certainty: something that being certain, one had learned to live with in one's mind—even with an irritation, sometimes a fury, that everybody else didn't see how certain it was. "We shall be attacked. We shall be caught, like all the others, by surprise and ill-prepared . . . just like all the others . . ." Furious with the talk and the debate and the acting as though the danger were not here, coming closer . . . coming closer all the time.

Dorothy Thompson

Well, now it was here.

It had happened the day before and now the president was going to speak.

There was even something of an anti-climax about it . . . and something idiotic. No variation. Just like Holland—and we were the great United States. Just like Russia—and we were thousands of miles away. Just like others! Who cares for ideologies among men attacked in their homes! The same pattern, now become evident. The same. The negotiations; the smiling diplomats.

Suddenly a cold, exaggerated fury at Kurusu's smile, that bland secretive smile that I had seen on all the photographs.

Not Shocked

A friend, sitting next to me at the radio, said, "Well, at least, you are not shocked."

"No." I said, "I am not shocked."

Yes, but I was. Odd that one never bets over being shocked. Over and over again the same pattern and always the surprise . . . the booby surprise. And I felt it too. "Not to us. They can't do that to us." Even when I'd known all the time that the calculated treachery was in the bones, where one knows things best. But still the surprise.

So it was here. And now the President was walking into Congress and the calm radio voice was describing his entrance . . . the President . . . The President addressing the joint session.

My president, Senator Pepper's president. Senator Vandenburg's president. Hamilton Fish's president. Our president.

"The President of the United States." "Of the United States."

America!

Why Did One Cry?

Why did one cry like any booby just at those words: "Of the United States."

Now it had come and it was going to be godawful. Not the way some of the radio commentators had said and the editorials. Not the "silly little Japs" and "we'd wipe up the floor with them." "Infamy!" Yes. Infamy. But so well planned, so well calculated, so efficient, so almost admirable that one thinks one after another . . . the great success story. Not easy. Hard. Terribly hard . . . death and wounds; heartbreaks and suffering; all the gruelling, wearing, tiring, haggard anxieties, the irritating privations . . . all the unbearable little things too . . . what Rebecca West called "the minor horrors of war."

Life had been so beautiful once . . . when was that . . . ? Oh, so long ago. But now . . . ! Now it would be . . . unbearable.

What a world!

That's the final test of who wins. Not the first success . . . the endurance.

The President spoke out strong the way you do when there is a lump in your throat to overcome. He hated it. Some had said he wanted it—because he saw it. Now the tremble in his voice, so wonderfully controlled. The President.

Not Many Words

Not too many words. That was good. There have been so many words already. Now it is deeds. "No matter how long it may take . . ." That was good. It won't be over tomorrow, or tomorrow.

"We will gain the inevitable triumph. "So help us God."

Yes, God help us. "God bless us every one said Tiny Tim." Says great America.

America! Thinking of everything one loves . . . the silly things, the trash back to the time we ran away to the Indian reservation near Gowanda. The south shore. Brooklyn. The second inaugural address: "For still the judgments of the Lord are true, and righteous altogether."

"I love thy rocks and rills." The creek by the house. The early drive afterward. At ten. "Thy woods and templed hills." Going to a college conference at Lake George . . . and the silly things . . . and the white farm in Vermont. Home.

"It was all the little books that had gone to school with me." Who wrote that? Edna Millay . . . war back . . . and she wrote those funny articles called "I like Americans." Funny why she liked them. Because they didn't wear suspenders and didn't "put a dead man in the top of the bed."

Doughnuts and coffee, hot dog stands, terrapin and Maryland ham . . . the first time you saw New York . . . the church at old Bennington . . . Monticello . . . Amos and Andy.

America!

All the little things one hated, too. That passion to change what one hates. Yes; fight for that, too! For our own damned right to change things in our own damned way.

How They Cheered!

Listen how they were applauding; how they were cheering! Not that deadly monotonous one-thing hell! Sieg heil!

Another rhythm. America's! He stood there: the President. And some of them had hated him; and many of them had fought him; and all of us had elected them: Gene Talmadge and Carter Glass; Senator Wheeler and Senator Austin; Senator La Follette and Sol Bloom, Ham Fish and George Aiken . . . all the States . . . the North, the South, the Middle West, the Southwest, the Far West . . . so near the Far East . . . the United . . . States . . . of . . . America.

Our side. Our team. Our flight. Our victory.

Their voices commingled in the great cry of the free!

"So help us God."

"Protect us by Thy might,

"Great God our King!"

That's telling 'em who our King is!

"Americanoid Conqueroral For thee . . . for thee, oh, democracy!

"For thee I am singing these songs."

Curling for the season has started.

M. Miquelon, immigration agent for Alberta, was in town this week.

I. Cowie has accepted the position of collector and observer for the department of archaeology and ethnology of the World's Columbian Exposition. He will occupy himself during the winter in the Saskatchewan country, and in the spring proceed down the Mackenzie to the Arctic coast.

E. T. Sanders has resumed proprietorship of the Lethbridge News.

1901—40 Years Ago

There is no question that the outfitting at Imperial expense of the contingent now being enlisted for South Africa is distasteful to those who feel that not only Canadians, but Canada as Canada, should do its part in upholding the prestige of the Empire. It is not enough that some Canadians are prepared ever ready—to lay their lives on the altar of sacrifice, unless all Canada has a part in the sacrifice. And the only way by which all Canada can have part is by helping to pay the necessary cost. The country which grudges money where it does not grudge blood, chespens itself and its people in the eyes of the world.

1911—30 Years Ago

The Marshall-Wells hardware company have bought out the business of John Somerville and Sons.

Under the new town act which is being put through the legislature all towns in Alberta will be placed under the single tax system.

Winnipeg: The contract has been let for the C.P.R. shops at Calgary.

The provincial government will aid in the maintenance of a sanitarium at Calgary.

1921—20 Years Ago

Captain Kincaid Smith, representing British capitalists, is in the city in connection with a proposal to bring natural gas to Edmonton.

London: Sir James Craig says Ulster will not join with the Free State.

Berlin: The government of Germany has informed the committee of guarantees that it is impossible for Germany to pay the sum due as reparations on January 15, and has asked for a moratorium.

Washington: Consideration of the naval ratio question was practically completed at today's session of the armament conference.

1931—10 Years Ago

New York: Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer for Great Britain, was taken to Lenox Hill hospital after being knocked down by an automobile while crossing Fifth avenue.

Tokyo: Premier Inukai said Marshal Hsueh-Liang must withdraw the Chinese army from the Chinchow district, and as soon as he does this Japan will evacuate points outside the South Manchuria zone, thus restoring peace in Manchuria.

Rome: Thirty lives were lost when a naval tug sank off Sardinia.

Montreal: The last link has been completed and Ontario and Quebec are now joined to British Columbia in a trans-Canada telephone system.

Bremen

LONDON DAILY HERALD

At a bomber station the other day they showed me a photograph taken from a great height by a reconnaissance plane. It was a photograph of Bremen after our bigger and better bombs had been dropped there.

At first, in the panorama of threadthin streets, I could hardly find the telltale smudges. Then they pushed a pair of stereoscopic magnifying glasses over the photograph, and said, "Look through these."

I looked, and there gaping up at me in model perfection, in three dimensions, were streets of roofless, crumbled houses and factories.

It was not just an "incident" here and there, but a spreading sore which looked as if it might be about to grow still farther.

That is the kind of sore upon which our long-term bombing planners depend. They think that, multiplied a thousandfold over Germany's war industries, it will cause the Nazi fruit to decay until our army can shake it down.

The Saturday Night Review

Broadcast Saturday, Dec. 13, Over Radio Station CFRN at 8:15 O'Clock

By HAROLD L. WEIR

The continent of North America suffered the greatest moral blow in its entire history when last Sunday afternoon armed forces of the Japanese Empire struck without warning at British and American possessions in the Pacific Ocean.

At the very moment when Messrs. Nomura and Kurusu were presenting to American Secretary of State Cordell Hull the most infamously lying document in the history of diplomacy, an insulting, prudent and insolent document, purporting to be the answer of the Japanese government to the proposals of the United States — at this very moment, fanatic pilots and dare-devil brown flyers, motivated by the best brains of Nazi Germany, were hurling death and destruction upon the unarmed people of Honolulu, killing 1,500 of them and injuring 1,500 more.

Harold L. Weir

It became immediately clear that this blood-curdling coup had been planned for weeks and that little Kurusu had not been a peace emissary at all, but a false and foreswornn international traitor sent to this country to allay the suspicions of the civilized world while his devilish compatriots were quietly edging into positions wherefrom to scatter murder and misery through the Pacific area.

Kurusu, with characteristic Japanese effrontery, kept up the innocent pose of ignorance to the end.

Hara-Kiri

The day after Mr. Roosevelt declared war, the Japanese embassy caused it to be noised abroad that considerable difficulty was being experienced with Mr. Kurusu and that the wretched little Judas Iscariot wanted to save his face by performance of the suicidal rite of hara-kiri.

It was Kurusu's prefence that the war had broken out because his peace negotiations had failed.

There was those who were all for letting Mr. Kurusu slice his abdomen in the rite of hara-kiri, being certain that here would issue therefrom more gall than gut.

There were others who felt that if anyone should commit hara-kiri through overwhelming shame, it should be the fish-faced Son of Heaven himself who, as supreme and divine head of the Japanese nation would have to take full responsibility for this greatest act of filthy treachery since the betrayal of Jesus Christ.

But Mr. Kurusu and his dreadful act of shame remained in the news only a few hours.

War had come, in all its frightful reality, to that North American continent which, from the cradle, we had been taught to believe was forever secluded from world strife and safe from the assaults of conquering enemies.

All this, remember, had been sacred ground. It was hallowed by the graves of countless pioneers who had fled Europe to escape the curse of international hatred and greed. It was dedicated by generations to the purposes of peace and had been dedicated, in a very special way, on a certain tragic battlefield by a great apostle of humanity who had promised these North American peoples that hereafter we should so live that "Government by the people, of the people and for the people should not perish from the earth."

This was to be our high destiny, to be ministers of enlightenment and civilization to all the world.

This was the sanctuary of liberty, the last stronghold of earthly peace.

Is it any wonder that Americans and Canadians found themselves in incoherent dismay when the evil forces of conquest began to open a frightful pathway to this continent?

Is it any wonder that all our preconceived notions began to lose substance and all our hopes began to shake and all our confidence wavered, despite our resolutions, when war, that grisly and bloody-fanged fiend, began to stalk stiff-legged and horrible down the main street of every city and village on this continent?

Final Answer

There have been thousands of Americans who had been thoroughly indifferent to the conflict in Europe and Asia because it seemed so remote and unreal. There have been thousands of Canadians, we confess with shame, in somewhat the same case.

But even the most worried and anxious of our people had not, consciously or unconsciously, upon one eventuality.

It was a common phrase on the lips of both Canadians and Americans, "Things may be bad and awful but wait until the United States gets into it."

Consciously or unconsciously, we were all looking to the might of the American people as the final answer to the challenge of Hitler and his bloody crew.

Think, then, of the shock when the defenses of Pearl Harbor, America's great naval and air base, were battered by the enemy, when Guam and Wake were said to be under attack, when the Philippines were bombed and when Jap airplanes are reported to have flown with impunity over the city of San Francisco.

There is a profound mystery about the behaviour of those Japanese planes. It is said, now, that they did not exist at all, that they were the products of the imagination of excited people.

This view is being encouraged by American official authorities who are obviously anxious to check any tendency towards panic on the Pacific coast. These people say, "If these were Japanese planes, why did they not drop bombs?"

Lackey Race

There is a simple explanation of that. The Japanese have a distressing inferiority complex. Underneath all their vanity and bombast is a distressing realization that, in world affairs, they are still a lackey race. Nothing proves the existence of that realization so conclusively as their absurd claim to the rulership of the earth.

Superior peoples never prate of their superiority. It remains for the hewers of wood and the drawers of water to formulate these extravagent pretensions.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor Bulletin: At this time of seeming emergency right at our own door, I recall the epidemic of flu that swept the country and although we knew of it and watched it coming from France to England, then to Eastern Canada and west, I was told by one of our leading doctors that through lack of preparedness, great hardship was suffered both by the victims of that disease and those who were trying to help them. And although I have no fear of our city being bombed either now or later it would not be any trouble to organize and be prepared.

Now, at our summer resorts and in lots of the smaller towns and villages there are vacant cottages, house and camps that are furnished or partly furnished. These could be made available in a very short time for any who leave to leave the city or for those our city fathers felt would be safer away from the congested cities.

I would be very glad to volunteer my time to this work if any one cares to cooperate and get in touch with me. Both those who have accomodation and those who require it. The service is definitely free and a letter will reach me.

Doing Right

Editor Bulletin: A while ago I noticed a "Farmer Wife" wrote to a paper saying how little English women were doing in this war. At least I can't now find her letter, but it seemed to amount to that.

There are works of mercy to attend to. Did she ever think of that? I myself am giving (not lending) reasonably generously to such causes, and extending help to my countrymen in misery and deprivation, at my own cost, as I have always done; am not asking the government to foot the bill, in due time, can't that be something?

Or would she rather, if it happened she were injured and lying in a ditch, everyone would pass her by? Or if she were starving for water, food, or had no shelter, no one would give to her because everything is needed elsewhere?

As to there being many selfish people who are a blot on the earth, living for themselves only, if she has noticed human creatures as I have, it appears that the great majority are selfish, and if they, being blots, are "rubbed out," there'll be very few left. Charitable, if God is the judge: possibly just two hundred or a few hundred, or even a couple of dozen, in the entire Christian world, so-called. This does not include the heathen world.)

And as to Canada doing what's right in God's eyes, well God is the judge of that. As far as what I've seen amongst the people and their ways, I wouldn't say much for the true worship of God here, including their believing like spoiled babies (reminding a tyrant: "Mighty oaks from little acorns grow," add here)—and like calves for their milk, an hour before the time, shaking their Premier (of Alberta), who at least seems to have an idea what God meant when He said "I will have mercy and not sacrifice." (This I remember having noticed from one time to another.) Stressing the point "I will have mercy."

If Canada is doing what is right in the sight of God, I'm doubly dead sure our Premier has been trying to, but I'm not sure of many others. But like they killed the prophets and stoned those that were sent unto them, some of the people of today have shown Mr. Aberhart about the same type of gratitude, also others who are striving their utmost to do God's will.

But to do right in the sight of men, that's a totally different matter, as a rule. Then you'll be swimming with the tide, and have plenty of praise, glory and honor, from men and women, if that's all one cares about. SEARCHLIGHT.

Old Age Pensions

Editor Bulletin: In reply to the letter given in your issue of the 10th inst. by Mr. J. W. Chapman, Calgary, I desire to put before your readers the following facts:

1. The pension act is dominion, provincial and municipal in scope.

2. The dominion pays 75 per cent, the provincial government 15 per cent and the municipality 10 per cent of the $20.00 payable to each pensioner of 70 years and over, residing in Canada, if he or she is a British subject.

Mr. Chapman should know that if Alberta increased the allowance to its pensioners, the dominion government is on record through its finance minister, Hon. Mr. Ilsley that such increase would be deducted from the dominion allowance to the province. In the last session of the house of commons Hon. Mr. Ilsley stated that all social services must be kept at a minimum as that more money could be diverted into war channels.

Perhaps Mr. Chapman is unaware that pensions originate in the provinces and if a pensioner moves from one province to another, the province from which the pensioner leaves is debited to the amount involved. If for example Alberta increased its pensions there is nothing to stop the movement of pensioners from other provinces to Alberta, and the province would have to bear the extra cost.

If Mr. Chapman believes that the provincial government can support pensioners from other provinces benefitting under our increased allowance, let me point out that the dominion act would need to be amended to stop it.

The bias, prejudice and apparent animosity is so pronounced that no impartial reader will be influenced by Mr. Chapman's diatribe. To link up what offering the Prophetic Bible Institute gives Mr. Aberhart for his services with the attitude of this government to the old age pensioners is despicable.

Is not Mr. Chapman aware that at the provincial Social Credit convention held recently in Calgary, a resolution was unanimously passed that the dominion government at the next session should amend the pensions act to permit each pensioner to receive $30.00 per month, and also that the age limit be 60 years. Furthermore the provincial government agreed to pay the extra share involved in such an increase.

Why not Mr. Chapman support this constructive solution to the admittedly acute problem facing the old age pensioners.

Typhus Breaks Out In Europe State Reports

Copyright, 1941, by British United Press and The Edmonton Bulletin

Stockholm newspaper dispatches from Berlin reported today that a severe epidemic of typhus had broken out in German-occupied Poland, Russia and Baltic republic areas and that all schools in the German-occupied Ukraine had been closed because of epidemics.

The British radio quoted Finnish newspapers as reporting typhoid among German soldiers in the Vilna, Bialystok and Brest-Litvosk areas and as expressing fear that the Russians at Leningrad might force a general German retreat. The Germans were described as insufficiently equipped for winter warfare.

SPANIARDS GO HOME

The official German news agency, heard by the British radio, reported that several leading members of the Spanish Falangist (Fascist) Party who had been serving with the Falangist "volunteers" against the Russians had returned to Spain "in order to fulfill their duty within the party during the winter."

An official Italian News Agency dispatch from Budapest reported that "a motorized Hungarian brigade" had returned from the eastern front and had been received enthusiastically at Budapest. The dispatch asserted that the brigade "has been replaced by other forces."

Both the German and Italian agencies reported the death in action on the Russian front of the Italian general, Ugo de Carolis.

Radio Berlin reported anti-American demonstrations in Sobranje square at Sofia, Bulgaria, yesterday. It said a crowd stormed the United States legation until troops intervened, and then the crowd tried to demonstrate before the Russian legation but was again dispersed.

RESTRICT JEWS

An Italian agency dispatch said that the Bulgarian government, under a law limiting the activities of Jews in the professions, had decreed that there should be only 36 Jewish lawyers, 50 physicians, seven obstretricians, 17 dentists, five chemists, 10 engineers and two architects in Bulgaria.

The Italian agency reported from Athens that at the demand of Axis occupation authorities the Swiss legation, which has taken charge of American and British interests in Greece, had "invited" all American and British citizens to report at once to the police station nearest their homes.

Municipal Group Sees Government On Resolutions

Following up the instructions given at their annual convention held here last month, the executive of the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts met the minister of municipal affairs and other government officials Monday morning to present resolutions passed at their annual meeting.

Main resolution was that protesting the institution of enlarged municipal units in the province.

The Saturday Night Review

It is not only eminently conceivable, then, but psychologically probable, that when these members of "the lackey race found themselves shorn of all by which they had played for so long the role of servants, they just didn't have the nerve to strike. Such psychological inhibitions have been known in war before.

This, of course, is only speculation—and rather rarified speculation at that.

But the fact remains that, in spite of federal anxiety to the doubt on the report of enemy planes over San Francisco, the area commandant in that city, General Chris Stark is home on a 20-day Christmas leave. He has had an intensive training and will be sent to Woodstock, Ont., for more training.

Towards the end of the week confidence began to return and dismay to abate. It became evident that in spite of heavy British and American losses in the Pacific our allies and ourselves had begun to get the situation in hand.

The ominous shadows of danger shortened in the Pacific as British and American defence organized itself in its inexhaustible might. Those same shadows of danger lengthened ominously in the Atlantic as both Germany and Italy came angrily and defiantly into the war against the United States.

The eyes of apprehension turned eastward. For it was realized that it was not Hitler's way to threaten without adding explosive substance to his threats. It was not his way to declare war without waging it.

Some hint of Germany's intentions began to be given as the week wore on and Hitler, with the dubious affection of an anaconda, began to gather France more closely into his embrace. It was rumored that at least part of the French fleet had handed over to the Nazis and that some arrangement was pending for greater collaboration in French Africa.

The American seizure of the great luxury liner "Normandie" appeared to indicate that the United States had a very good notion of what that collaboration would be.

Thus, the dismissal of General Weygand at last became clear. It was part and parcel of an Axis plot, worked out over a period of months, to engulf the United States.

There can be no doubt in the world, today, that Germany is planning a terrific assault on the American Atlantic seaboard, probably by way of Dakar and other even more important African bases.

One might almost expect, also, to hear of surprising and alarming developments in Portugal which Hitler must covet as a jumping-off place for the attack on that nation upon which he seems to have lately concentrated all his insensate hatred.

Corroboration of the persistent idea that Germany was preparing an attack on North America appeared in the reports, this week, from Russia, where, both in the air and on the land, the Soviet forces scored notable victories.

With no intent to disparage the valor and gallantry of the Russian forces, which have already established themselves among the world's finest, many noted the significance of victories which coincided so mysteriously with Hitler's declaration of war against the United States.

These Russian victories and advances were so marked that the guess became obvious that Hitler had already withdrawn large quantities of air and land forces for the projected assault upon this continent.

Ladies and gentlemen:

I published an article in The Bulletin, this week, which became the target for considerable abuse.

In that article I attacked the complacency of Canadians and others towards the urgency of this war, and commended the near panic into which the early stories of reverses had thrown us. I said that only out of desperation could come that total effort which alone could defeat the Axis.

I urged upon the Canadian, British and American people the employment of ruthlessness to combat ruthlessness, of savagery to meet cruelty, and savagery to abolish savagery.

I do not retreat now from that position. On the contrary, I desire to emphasize it.

The combined might of the British Empire and the American Republic is a tremendous and irresistible thing. But, at present, we are not drawing upon ten percent of that potential might. I will we do so draw upon it, we are in a desperate position. It is criminal folly to deny it.

To sit down complacently and smugly and idiotically under the comforting shade of the reflection that Britain always loses every battle but the last one is sheer imbecility. At some time and in some place, preparatory to the traditional last victorious battle must begin. Only total war will win that last battle.

There has been no war like this one since the days when the Romans and the Carthaginians 2,082 years ago.

Carthage was more than a rival to Rome. It was more than an enemy. Carthage was the enemy of the world, the mortal enemy of and honor and kindliness.

Just like Germany today, Carthage had been divided, by some mysterious diabolical means, from the ordinary course of civilization.

Like the Germans, the Carthaginians had wantonly and willingly turned their backs on all morality and ethics and all those conceptions of civilized beauty and grace that lend dignity and glory to human life.

Like the Germans, the Carthaginians repudiated benign religion. They worshiped devils. Just as the Germans mailed babies alive in bombed London hospitals, the Carthaginians roasted babies alive in their obscene images of Baal.

Is it any wonder that Cato the Elder cried in and out of season, in the streets of Rome and on every corner of the city, until men thought him mad, "Delinda est Carthago!"—Carthage must be destroyed!

Well, Carthage was destroyed. It was torn alone from alone and brick from brick. Its people were killed and scattered. The Carthage of the devil-worshipping Carthaginians simply disappeared from the face of the earth.

It was not a victory for the Romans. It was a victory for the world. It was not a victory for a single age. It was a victory for all posterity that lifted an intolerable burden of suave iniquity from the hapless shoulders of generations unborn.

By this fateful victory was decided that the Mediterranean area should become a breeding ground of beauty and gentle culture and not a cesspool of vicious doctrines instilling the poison of a perverted spirituality and a tradition of rebellion against morality and ethics and decency into the veins of all those millions yet to be born in all ages and in all lands.

Germany is another Carthage. She pollutes the world. She stinks in the nostrils of decent men. And if she survives, we will not have a world dedicated to grace and generosity and kindliness and a Christian ethic and morality, but a world dedicated, for all time, to cruelty, oppression, violence and treachery.

This is the greatest crisis in the world for 2,082 years. What we need is another Cato.

For the sake of the dignity and the beauty of human history, for the sake of the power and the glory of human life, Germany must be destroyed!

Looking them Over

by JACK KELLY

EDMONTON'S Junior Hockey League is underway at last—out under the stars. Saturday brought the long-awaited opener at the new 119th street rink with the young E.A.C. squad trimming their old enemies, the Maple Leafs, 9-4 in what can be rated an upset. At the same time the Canadian Athletic Club won 4-2 at Wetaskiwin in overtime.

What there is of the new rink is very well made and mighty substantial, a structure that should stand many a long year. The trouble is there is not enough of this said structure. There is still no defrosting room for the fans and even the referees have no dressing room of their own.

Several hundred of the city's most faithful fans turned out Saturday night, well and thoroughly bundled up, and stuck it out to the end. The style trend for Edmonton hockey fans this winter will be the closest possible approach to the ensembles worn by the Eskimos during the snappiest Arctic weather.

While the teams have not had their usual chance to get into condition, most fans got the impression that the boys were not travelling at as fast a pace as they usually do on an indoor rink. The ice was good and the lighting was fine. It will be some time, however, before the general feeling of strangeness wears off this new hockey locale.

You're Good When You're Champ

TONIGHT at the Empire Theatre you will get a chance to see in action Canada's outstanding fight combine—Bantamweight Champion Kenny Lindsay and his manager, Arnold Bertram. Kenny fights Henry Espinosa of Los Angeles in the main event of the card being staged by Promoter Sid Beech of Vancouver.

If you have been around fistiana much or even seen many movies built around boxing, you will immediately picture a very hard, unscrupulous and cigar-smoking character when you think of a manager of a fighter.

Arnold Bertram is the very opposite. He is young, sympathetic, clean-cut, a firm believer in square dealing and giving the public the best at all times. Furthermore, he smokes cigarettes—and my maiches.

Most managers grab a fighter up as a meal ticket when he shows enough to promise some measure of profits. Bertram started Lindsay off as an amateur when he was just 15 years old and has stuck with him ever since, leading him through the mazes and pitfalls of fistiana with a very sure foot. He is proud of Kenny's fighting ability, but equally proud of the fact that Kenny has become the sort of boy anyone would be glad to have for a son.

The higher you set your sights, the farther you reach. Arnold Bertram subscribes unreservedly to that.

"I've never told Kenny yet that he was good," Arnold declared. "I'll only say that when he is the champion of the world and he knows it. Being champion of the west or south—even of Canada—doesn't mean a thing. A fighter is a failure unless he can lift the world championship. That's what Kenny is shooting at. All the time when he is trailing he's trying to improve his technique and out of every fight he has he learns something.

"You know some fighter that nobody ever heard of is often the toughest hombre. Remember that unknown third-rater that Dempsey used to have so much trouble with? The toughest fight Kenny ever had was with Elwood Ramaro. Ever hear of him?

"This Espinosa is a tough baby. Kenny has seen him fight in Los Angeles and thinks he can beat him. I do too, but I'm not sure of it. I'm positive though that it will be a fight worth any fan's money. Kenny rates now up at the top in the bantam division and to stay there he has to fight good boys. Tonight's battle goes into the U.S.A. New York and California records. If Espinosa wasn't an opponent over whom a win would do some good, I would be a sucker to agree to a bout for even a pelooka sometimes lands with a lucky punch. That would bat Kenny off the top of the heap while a win over a stumble-bum wouldn't mean a thing.

Just twenty years old now, Kenny expects to take his place in the Canadian army shortly, but he hopes first to get a crack at the New York and California title carried by Lou Salica and the N.B.A. crown worn by Olivera. There is a good chance of forcing these bouts in the next few months.

Ramsey, Batho Win Eaton Trophy

Nelson Squeezes Ben Hogan Out Of First Money

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio, streaked over the final nine holes in a sensational five-under-par 30 Sunday to post a 72-hole 269 and become the second player to win the $10,000 Miami open golf tournament in successive years.

Faltering for the first time, Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., blew a one-stroke lead and finally finished in second place after shooting 70-71. Out in front since the first day, Hogan slipped over par for the first time and needed a 72.

Making the turn in one-over 36, Nelson had to get hot to clinch the first prize of $2,500. He started his amazing burn on the 12th and had birdies on five of the next seven holes. Twice in a row, on the 16th and 17th, he sank shots of approximately 60 feet.

Hogan collected $1,250, second money, against the $1,000 third prize gained by Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., the Canadian open champion whose game virtually collapsed on the final nine. He made the turn in 32, then slipped to a 37 for the 69 that gave him a total of 275.

Hogan, however, ran his money winnings to $17,333, which cap not be exceeded for the year. Snead has won $12,848 and Nelson's top winnings today ran his total to $11,250.

Chapman Threatened With Kayoe

Gym Workouts Promise Torrid Battle Tonight

TONIGHT at 8:30 p.m. at the Empire theatre the gong will start the first prelim away on the Kenny Lindsay-Henry Espinosa fight card being presented under the promotion of Sid Beech of Vancouver—a fight card that promises some blistering action if gym performances mean anything.

Lindsay, dominion bantamweight champion and one of the leading contenders at present for the world championship, takes on a tough package in Espinosa who has been packing them in at the Hollywood Stadium. The battle is slated for 10 rounds.

The semi-final is a 10-rounder between Jimmy Chapman and Bobby Melino, another good little puncher from Los Angeles. Chapman has hopes of earning a shot at Lindsay's Canadian title, but Melino has confidently announced that he will guarantee to keep Chapman by the fifth round at the latest.

UNUSUAL INTEREST

Another bout promising unusual interest is the six-round special attraction that pits Vic Pollock of Edmonton against "Silent" Chester Orr of Calgary. Orr is deaf and dumb but has built up quite a following in Calgary. He is a welter.

KENNY LINDSAY

Sammy Kline and Chuck Dillon, two 125-pounders from Calgary, will stage one of the four-round prelims. The other prelim will send Don McDonald against Kid Cartier, both welters.

Orr, Kline and Dillon are under the management of Ernie Farr of Calgary.

Jerry Delane will be the third man in the ring for the main event.

TICKETS MOVING

The ticket sale moved along briskly on Saturday and this morning swung into high. If the early morning demand continues, there is every indication the theatre will be well filled tonight.

Lindsay, Espinosa and Melino polished off their training with a few rounds of fast boxing at the Palace Gardens on Sunday evening before a good sized crowd of fans.

Melino, who saw Chapman working on Saturday, was confident that he could win fast.

FIFTH AT LATEST

"Chapman won't be around after the fifth round at the latest," Melino told Promoter Sid Beech.

Lindsay is headed for an early date at Lou Salica, the bantamweight champion recognized by the New York and California boxing commissions. Arnold Bertram, his shrewd young manager figures that this go with Espinosa is the sort of a tough assignment he needs to sharpen him for the crack at the champion.

Freddy Smitten Bags Three Goals

Coming up with a fast young team which showed plenty of fire both on attack and defence, Edmonton Athletic Club turned in a surprise 9-4 win over Maple Leafs, at 119 street rink in the city Junior Hockey League opener Saturday night.

Freddy Smitten, of last year's E.A.C. squad, led his team with three goals and an assist, while Art Michaluk, husky defenceman, also snared four points and Harry Allen grabbed off a pair of counters. Pat Doolan was high for Leafs with two goals and an assist.

In spite of the fact that it was the first game of the season the boys put up a real exhibition, the E.A.C. aggregation showing more finish. The Leafs after being one goal up in the first period slipped in the middle frame to the extent of five goals, but came back somewhat in the final chapter.

A reasonably good fight with all hands participating was thrown in as an added third-period attraction for the few hundred fans.

DEFENCE SHARP

Irving Barber got little protection in the Leaf nets, although Ab Supersiein looked after his part of the assignment fairly well and in addition gave us some dangerous rushes, a goal resulting from one.

Most of the team work of the night was done by Pat Doolan and Johnny Baird of last year's juvenile champions. Barber made some great saves in the last few minutes, and stopped what looked to be certain counters three times in rapid succession, when the defence was caught down the ice.

LOOKS GOOD

Art Michaluk, the husky 180-pound Camrose boy looked exceptionally good on defence. Art is just 18 and he has the ear-marks of a top-notcher. Harry Allen also showed a great improvement over his last year's work.

The Clubmen scored their first goal when the Leafs were short. Allen netted the puck on a pass from Harry Niblett, who incidentally played a very effective game.

Black was still off when Eddie Huffman evened the count single-handed at 10:15 after a break-away from his own blue line.

The Leafs moved ahead at 16:30, Doolan and Baird combining nicely and this goal also came when the opposition was short, Barney Adair being in the cooler.

The second period turned into more or less of a rout as the E.A.C. hammered in five goals in the first 14 minutes. Allen, Niblett, Michaluk each shared one and Smitten got a pair. Two of the counters were made when the Leafs had a player in the penalty box.

The Ab Chambers coached crew added another early in the last period. Bill Ingram putting the finishing touches on a play in which Smitten and Young figured at 2:20. Just at the half-way mark Supersiein and Young got into a tangle and Dutchak also took a hand in it, with the result that the affair became a general mix-up with the boys all throwing punches at the nearest man who looked like an opponent. Supersiein, Dutchak and Jack Ingram did penance for the lot.

Michaluk on a play with Carlyle sent the score up to 8-2 at 14:18. Doolan got one back a half minute later and then combined with Supersiein for another at 16:55.

Smitten and Bill Ingram, the latter still eligible for midget ranks, accounted for the final goal. It was Ingram's first junior game.

Med-Pharm-Dents Beat Arts 7-0

Schrader's Ag-Comm-Law Squad Tops Interfac Loop

Bob Schrader's Ag-Comm-Law outfit edged into undisputed leadership of the University Interfaculty "A" Hockey League Saturday afternoon when they defeated the Engineers 2-1 at the Varsity outdoor rink. In the other game of the double-header Bruce Mackay led his Med-Pharm-Dents in a 7-0 scoring spree over the winless Arts.

The next games in the U. of A. schedule will not be played until after the Christmas holidays. Engineers and Med-Pharm-Dents are now tied for second spot in the league standings.

Great goal-tending by Jack Setters, with Red Deer Juveniles last winter, just about won the game for the Engineers in their tussle with the A-C-L squad.

Thornton grabbed the game's first goal for the Engineers early in the first period, and from then until early in the third period Setters held back the Agge combination "powerhouse" drives from scoring.

George Stuart finally got the A-C-L tieing counter on a pass from Frank Quigley, while Rappel was doing time for the game's only penalty. Louis Lebel repeated some the winning marker on a smart passing play that included Garvin and Schrader.

Bruce ("Muscles") Mackay had his shooting stick well primed for the Arts net in his club's encounter with the Jack Quigley's team. He just skated out and scored three goals and an assist. All of which puts him on top of the scoring column with six points in two games.

Despite the deluge of rubber that was hurled at him during the entire game, Marwood Brimacombe made a good showing in the Arts net. Other Med boys who beat him on shots were Baker, who did it twice, Niddrie and Jones.

Joe Hewko, who last season starred with the Vegreville Juniors, was called upon to tend goal in both games. He rubbed for the A-C-L regular in the first game, and played his own goal position with the M-P-D boys in the second contest.

Coast Swimmers Claim New Marks

VANCOUVER, Dec. 15—(CP)—Officials of the Vancouver Amateur Swimming club today claimed three new Canadian records after an inter-city swim gala here Saturday night which included stars from the Washington Athletic club at Seattle.

Joan Langdon of Vancouver was timed in 3 1-5 seconds in winning the senior women's 50-yard breast stroke event. Her time was three-fifths of a second better than the mark she set at Kelowna, B.C., last year when she was credited with a Canadian record of 34 4-5 seconds.

Bruce Donaldson of Seattle swam the 50-yard back stroke for senior men in 28 4-5 seconds to claim another Canadian record. The existing record is 29 4-5 seconds, set by Jack McCormick of Hamilton, Ont., at Kingston, Ont., last year.

Third Canadian mark was the 150-yard medley relay for senior women, won by the Vancouver Amateur Swimming club team in 1:402. They hold the present record of 1:41 made here in 1937.

Rose Bowl Shrine Benefit Games May Be Moved Inland

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—(AP)—War times caused a cancellation today of the Rose Bowl and the East-West football games. There was a possibility of one or both of the New Year's Day gridiron classics would be held in some inland city.

The Rose Bowl game between Oregon State college and Duke University as well as the tournament of Roses parade at Pasadena were officially called off after a conference between committee members and Lt.-Gen. John L. DeWitt, commander of the Fourth Army.

Directors of the East-West contest, bringing together senior college stars and held here annually for the benefit of the Shriners' crippled children's hospital, cancelled local arrangements for the game at the request of General DeWitt.

They said, however, the game will be played in another locality, with the same proceeds to charity. The new game site has not been selected.

ARMY PRECAUTION

Reasons for the cancellations were identical, military prohibition of the gathering of large crowds.

At Corvallis, Ore., C. V. Ruzek, Oregon State coast conference faculty representative, said "Negotiations are definitely on to transfer the Rose Bowl game to another location."

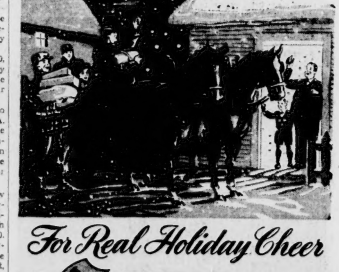

In Chicago it was proposed to switch the game to Soldiers' Field, with a seating capacity or around 120,000. Denver University stadium in the Rocky Mountain city also was believed under consideration. It is a comparatively small bowl.

CHICAGO FAVORED

Members of the east-west game committee likewise discussed a new site for their all-star attraction. Informally they were represented as desirous of taking the yearly pigskin spectacle to Chicago. Many players on the eastern 23-man squad, already selected, are from the big ten conference and from such noted independent colleges as Notre Dame.

There also was speculation as to the possible fate of the brilliant winter home racing season at Santa Anita Park in southern California, starting the first of the year, and the National League all star professional football game, set for Los Angeles, Jan. 3.

Gen. DeWitt's press relations office said a statement could be expected later today.

Jack Portland Scores Winner

Brooklyn Falls Before Flying Frenchmen's Attack

MONTREAL, Dec. 15.—(CP)—Canadiens scored their second successive National Hockey League victory after five losses by defeating Brooklyn Americans 3-2 in overtime Saturday night before 5,000 fans. The win put them on even terms with Amerks at the bottom of the standing.

At 3:12 of the overtime Big Jack Portland banged home the clinching goal.

Canadiens had opened the scoring early in the second period, when Ray Getliffe took Buddy O'Connor's pass to score, but Brooklyn tied the count on Pep Kelly's goal and moved in front at 5:04 of the third session when Norm Larson and Murray Armstrong set up the play which allowed Rookie Joe Krol to score.

Canadiens battling was rewarded when Terry Reardon slipped the puck over the prone Amerk goalie during a power attack.

A fight in which players of both sides participated broke out near the end of the game. As a result Manager Red Dutton of Amerks had a $50 fine slapped on him and Terry Reardon drew a 10-minute misconduct banishment. One spectator punched Referee Red King for taking exception to his officiating. An usher broke it up.

LYNN PATRICK BEATS OWN CLUB

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—(CP)—Lynn Patrick, noted for his last-minute scoring efforts on behalf of New York Rangers, was geared in reverse Saturday night. The National Hockey League's top scorer pushed the puck into the wrong net in the final minute to give Toronto Maple Leafs a 2-1 triumph over his mates.

Lorne Carr, last Toronto player to handle the puck in a scramble, was credited with the payoff goal which gave the Leafs at least temporary league leadership.

A crowd of 11,194 fans saw Goalie Turk Broda turn in a phenomenal performance. With Wally Stanowski and Reg Hamilton benched due to injuries, the Leafs presented only three rearguards and their performance was wobbly.

The only shot to get past Broda cautioned Left Kampman's foot under Grant Warwick, most effective man on the ice, fired from the right side of the nets to even the count in the third period. The Regina winger crashed into the Toronto goal post in the second period and suffered a cut cheek.

Leafs were in front in the third minute of play on Syl Apps' goal.

Westcott Bags Six Goals For Wolverhampton

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(CP Cable)—Britain's football defences took a severe beating Saturday.

Prolific scoring marked scheduled games and the total app oached the war-time record of 212 goals scored in 41 matches on Dec. 16, 1939. In Saturday's 36 games 205 goals were tallied.

Denis Westcott, Wolverhampton Wanderers forward, set the pace with six goals as the Wanderers defeated Nottingham Forest 7-6. In another high-scoring contest Newcastle United trounced Huddlesbrough 7-4.

The day's big surprise was Arsenal's defeat at home by Brentford in a London league match before a crowd of 10,000. The score was 3-1. Crystal Palace, Arsenal's nearest rival for the league championship, lost 1-0 to Millwall, leaving Arsenal's three-point lead unchanged.

Preston North End, North league leaders, scored their 10th successive victory. The North Enders defeated Bolton Wanderers 6-2.

The first of two games in the Scottish Northeastern league cup final ended in a 4-1 victory for Dundee United over Aberdeen. The second game will be played at Aberdeen Dec. 20.

Scottish southern league games all worked out to the benefit of Glasgow Rangers who gained a comfortable 3-0 home triumph over Arbroath. Rangers now have a 4-point lead on first place. Hearts, one of Rangers' challengers, lost 5-1 to Third Lanark.

AN ASTOUNDING HUNTRESS: Miss Nellie Shannon, who is unable to walk and has been confined to a wheel-chair since childhood, has been hunting from a wheel-chair for the last 20 years. Recently she shot a 140-pound mule deer in the Ochoco forest. The quarry was killed with a single shot at 85 yards. Miss Shannon is also a crack duck shot and has several "doubles" to her credit—a duck with each barrel of the gun.

Habitants Win Three Straight

Canadiens Beat Amerks To Emerge From Cellar

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(CP)—Montreal Canadiens Sunday night ended a long tenure of the National Hockey League cellar when they defeated Brooklyn Americans 4-2 and took over sole possession of sixth place. It was Canadiens' fourth victory of the season, and their third in a row.

The victory, second by the Montrealers over Brooklyn in their week-end home and home series, was by far the best showing they have made this season. For Brooklyn it was the ninth straight loss since they last won a game, against New York Rangers here Nov. 20.

Kenny Reardon, Montreal's aggressive defenceman, was their scoring hero, with one goal, while Defenceman Percy Grabosk and Centre Johnny Quilty got the others.

But the trio that caught the eye of the crowd of 10,159 was the flashy new line of Pete Morin, Buddy O'Connor and Gerry Heffernan. They produced two of the goals. Early in the first period, when Harry Watson served a penalty for high-sticking Reardon, Morin and O'Connor provided assists for goals by Grabosk and Reardon, sending Canadiens away to a lead they held throughout.

Americans made their best showing in the second period when Mel Hill and Ken Mosdell scored.

LEAFS BLAST DETROIT APART

DETROIT, Dec. 15.—(CP)—The speedy Toronto Maple Leafs blasted Detroit Red Wings' defence apart Sunday night to register a 4-0 victory before 10,886 fans. The victory left the Leafs firmly perched atop the National Hockey League standings.

The Red Wings carried the play deep into the Toronto territory for more than two periods before the Maple Leafs' smooth-geared offensive turned on its power and registered three markers in quick succession in the closing minutes of the game.

Centre Billy Taylor played the hero-role by scoring Toronto's first two goals, the first at 15:06 of the second period and the second at 16:39 of the final stanza. His first trip was a solo exhibition which he engineered by snatching a Red Wing pass and faking Goalie Mowers off his skates.

Nick Metz and Gordon Drillon alternated on the final two Toronto scores, the latter coming with five second remaining to play.

The Red Wings, refreshed by a week's lay-off, started with a burst of speed that matched anything the Maple Leafs could offer, but the alert Toronto defencemen and Walter (Turk) Broda's neat goalminding always stopped the puck short.

The Canadian club went on the ice with Syl Apps, Don Metz and Wally Stanowski listed among the missing, while Detroit's lineup was minus forward Eddie Wares and defenceman Alex Motter.

Time and again the Wings rushed into the Toronto zone and fired pass after pass to the goal-mouth. In the final moments they made no effort to defend their cage, and the Leafs clocked off their closing points with ease.

BRUINS RALLY TO BEAT HAWKS

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—(AP)—Boston Bruins rallied against Chicago Black Hawks with two goals in the third period of a National Hockey League game Sunday night to tie the score at 3-3. Neither team scored in the overtime.

A crowd of 18,366 in the Chicago Stadium saw the Hawks take a first-period 1-0 lead on Max Bentley's goal at 14:16, and remain ahead at 2-1 after two periods of play.

Then in the third frame the Hawks went in front, 3-1, on a goal by veteran defenceman Earl Seibert at 4:45, only to have the Bruins come back with two goals in 22 seconds by Woody Dumart to tie the score.

Bill Carse's second-period goal for Chicago at 6:59 was equalled by Red Hamill's tally for the Bruins at 17:00.

After Seibert's goal had put Chicago in front 3-1, it looked as if the third-place Hawks might cut the margin separating them in the standings from the second-place Bruins to a single point. But Dumart, taking the puck from Bobby Bauer and Dit Clapper, scored at 10:23 and again at 10:45, aided by Bauer and Milt Schmidt.

Chicago Bears Enter Pro Final

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—(AP)—Chicago Bears, with a great 24-point splurge in the second period, defeated Green Bay Packers Sunday 33-14, to win the playoff for the National Football League's Western Division title. The Bears thereby earned the right to meet New York Giants, Eastern winners, in the pro championship game next Sunday at Wrigley Field.

The Bears tore up and down the turf of Wrigley Field in the second quarter for three touchdowns, three conversion points and a field goal, gaining a 30-7 half time lead. The first quarter ended 7-6.

The Packers got a mere 35 yards rushing dompared to 207 for Chicago. But their passing game, despite a sharp Bear defense around end Don Hudson, was hot and they amassed 222 yards in the air to 48 for Chicago.

Bobby Riggs Tops List U. S. Tennis

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—Bobby Riggs, men's National tennis champion, who will make his pro debut at Madison Square Garden, Dec. 26, and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, women's title holder, were placed at the top of the 1941 rankings of the United States Lawn Tennis Association Saturday.

Awarding of the No. 1 spot to Riggs returned the Clinton, S.C., star to the position he held in 1939.

In the men's column, Frank Kovacs, Oakland, Calif., placed second and E. Frank Parker, Los Angeles, third.

Pauline Betz, Los Angeles, was second among the women, and Dorothy May Bundy, Santa Monica, third.

John Kramer, Los Angeles, and Fred Schroeder, Glendale, Calif., were awarded the No. 1 spot in the men's doubles.

Sorokoski Meets Deluge Of Rubber

CALGARY, Dec. 15—(CP)—Calgary Stampeders advanced into second place, three points behind the A.B.C. Senior Hockey League pacemakers, Lethbridge Maple Leafs, by administering a 9-2 setback to the leg-weary and travel-worn Red Deer Buffaloes before 3,738 fans here Saturday night.

Playing their sixth game in eight days, Buffaloes made a courageous and determined stand but, handicapped by playing so many games and by the wear and tear of an arduous trip to and from the Kootenays they were in no condition to match the brilliant performance of the Cowboys who were at the top of their form.

Nothing but fighting spirit held the Buffaloes up during the final period and despite their condition they never stopped trying. With Stampeders playing so brilliantly, passing the puck so accurately and carrying play right in top of the net, it was a tough debut into senior ranks for young Carl Sorokoski, former Lethbridge Junior goalkeeper, who replaced the veteran Dave Pow in the Red Deer net.

Doug. Cairns, Pete Atkinson, with two goals each and Pete Ettinger, Dan Sproul, Chuck Wilson, Tony Desmarais and Ron Gardner, one each, were the Calgary marksmen. "Pussy" Proulx, hardest working man in the game and Ollie Dahl, former Calgary Intermediate were the scorers for Red Deer.

Stampeders assumed a 3-0 lead in the first period; made it 6-2 in the second and added three more goals in the third.

LINEUPS:

LEAFS WALLOP KIMBERLEY CLUB

LETHBRIDGE, Dec. 15—(CP)—Moving ahead in the second period after being held on even terms in the first and then tapping in three quick goals in the closing frame, Lethbridge Maple Leafs Saturday night turned back Kimberley Dynamiters 6-1, before a crowd of about 2,200 fans.

Lethbridge opened the scoring after 13 minutes of first-period play but Kimberley tied the count in another four minutes and for a time it looked as though the B.C. puckmen were making the first swing around the Eastern Division of the A.B.C. circuit, would make a close fight for it.

However, late in the second period Maher and Lunde scored about three minutes apart for Lethbridge and in the first six minutes of the closing period three more Leaf goals were driven home to put the decision beyond all doubt.

Maher, with three goals, paced the Lethbridge sextet, Lunde, Rimstad and Burke getting one each. Wilson netted the first period tally that saved Dynamiters from being shut out.

General Motors Auto Service Highly Modern

There are still a great many car owners in this country who are only very third rate drivers, according to C. F. McTavish, director of parts and service, General Motors Products of Canada, Limited.

"They start and stop like scared rabbits, do a lot of impatient and unnecessary pumping on the accelerator while waiting for a traffic light, and insist on being the first away, regardless of the consequences to the engine of a car that represents an investment of hundreds of dollars," he declared.

CREATES PROBLEM

"This type of driver," continued Mr. McTavish, "has presented a problem in service requirements that car manufacturers have had to meet and overcome. In the old days, taking a car in to be serviced meant an outlay of several dollars for a service job that in most cases contained a lot of unnecessary work. The idea then was, go over the whole car and you're sure to hit the trouble. Today, with up-to-date engine testing equipment, there is no need for the careful motorist to pay for the same type of service job as the man who takes a lot out of a car in a very short time.

"Beyond a few essential winter services which are recommended for all cars, the service man will recommend only the work which his mechanical testing equipment proves are necessary. The careful driver will find that these "needed" services don't amount to a great deal.

At present, he pointed out, winter service jobs are the most essential. They include changing to lighter engine oil, winter transmission and rear axle lubricants, a minor tune-up covering spark plugs and distributor points, timing, carburetor idle, and cleaning of distributor cap and coil terminals, and, most important, a sufficient supply of anti-freeze.

VARIED SERVICE

There are several other service jobs which, although not seasonal, are necessary in order to insure the satisfactory operation of a car. These include body and chassis lubrication, a cleaning job on the carburetor air cleaner and crank-case ventilator inlet.

The service man you patronize will become well-acquainted with your car, and having your driving pleasure in mind, will make careful checks of such items as cylinder compression, the battery, generator, ignition, carburetor and choke. He will also keep the safety devices in brakes, lights and steering in good shape.

"One of the best ways to help Canada's war effort is to practice economy in motoring," declared Mr. McTavish. A practical way to do this is to have a good service job done on your car by a competent service man—regularly."

Gen. McNaughton Issues Message Canadian Corps

By ROSS MUNRO

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Dec. 15—(CP)—Lt. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian Corps in Britain, Sunday night sent this message to the troops upon the occasion of Christmas and of the second anniversary of the arrival in December 1939, of leading elements of the First Division.

His message follows:

It now is two years since leading elements of the Canadian army arrived in this country. The equipment and the training of these formations was complete and since then a steadily-increasing force has been held ready for any service which might be required: meanwhile other forces have been organized by the Canadian govrnment and dispatched to the Far East and to our own eastern shore, now menaced by a new foe.

NEED IS RECOGNIZED

So far it has been our principal duty to stand guard in these islands. We recognize the need for this decision for, with the enemy's hordes within a few short miles of this vital centre of civilization, the reason is evident to all.

Nevertheless through long months on watch and in repeated routine training, there have been many disappointments as action deferred and great patience has been required: it has been given without complaint and I count it a privilege and a satisfaction to be able to say so and to thank all ranks for the steady purpose and acceptance of conditions which they have shown.

On behalf of all our force I thank the people of Britain also for their continued hospitality and friendliness which have done so much to ease our path.

From a very small beginning the Canadian army has now grown to many tens of thousands of men and women. New units and formations and reserves have come to us as quickly as ships could be found to bring them here and as they have arrived the organization of our military headquarters, reinforcement units, hospitals, schools, repair establishments and many other needed facilities have been pressed forward; meanwhile our engineer and signal and forestry corps have made their contribution to the life and welfare of the community.

READY FOR USE

Throughout this long period of preparation which circumstance has given us, the corps, divisions, armored formations and other field units have been completed in equipment and trained together and with squadrons of the Royal Canadian Air Force assigned to army co-operation. These tasks have been pursued with unrelaxed attention, and the whole has been made ready for decisive employment when the opportunity comes to take full effect on the enemy.

That the future holds great difficulties and dangers and much hardship there is no doubt, but we go forward firm in our confidence in the ultimate result—the triumph of justice and right over the dark forces of evil which oppose us.

Dutch Sub Toll Now 6 Jap Ships

By JOHN RALEIGH

BATAVIA, N.E.I., Dec. 15 —(BUP)—Dutch naval officers said today that Netherlands submarines, which have taken a heavy toll of Japanese shipping, continue to inflict heavy blows on the enemy.

The Royal Netherlands Navy announced the sinking of six Japanese ships in two days. Its communique yesterday said a Japanese freighter and a tanker had been sunk off the east coast of Malaya. Saturday, the destruction of four transports with 4,000 Japanese soldiers was announced.

Dutch submarine squadrons, operating under the British naval command at Singapore have been praised as a valuable asset to the allied effort.

The Netherlands undersea craft are of the latest type. Armed with the deadliest weapons, they are operated with high efficiency by crews upholding the tradition of the Dutch navy from captain to cook.

Eire To Remain Neutral Nation Valera States

CORK, Dec. 15.—(CP)—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera declared Sunday that "it would be unnatural if we did not sympathize in a special manner" with the United States now that she is involved in the war, but he added that Eire can only be a "friendly neutral."

"The question of how America's entry into the war will affect our state policy here we have answered in advance. The policy of this state remains unchanged," said de Valera in a speech at a parade of defence forces.

"Incompleteness of our national freedom," he said, makes neutrality the only possible policy for Eire. "Any other policy would have divided our people and for a divided people to enter this war should have been to commit suicide."

Mr. de Valera was quoted by the British Broadcasting Corporation as saying "every hour is priceless" in rushing defence preparations.

"If this war comes upon us," he said, "it will come upon us as a thief in the night.

"I urge again the imperative necessity of having all plans and preparations complete. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

Cut-Off In New Tire Sales May Be Step For Rationing

That the present cut-off in new tire sales was a temporary measure to enable a nation-wide stock-taking as a prelude to tire rationing, was the general opinion of those most concerned when they were interviewed by The Bulletin Monday.

One large operator in the tire business said, "I think this is a temporary arrangement which will only be in effect until the government is able to determine just what are the tire stocks in all the territories.

"All the dealers are making reports on their stocks to the rubber companies and this week a check-up is being made on consignments. It is likely that, by the end of the second week in January, the government will have in its hands a complete picture of the country's tire stocks.

"I don't think we are going to be really short of tires. As a matter of fact, there are some stocks who have tires on their shelves to last them until 1942. Of course some of these will be taken by the government, but it gives a general idea of the supply situation as it is at present."

Speaking of the use of old tires, this dealer stated that there has not been much wastage. Used tires are nearly always turned in when

Historic Events Topic Of Sermon

Taking as his theme "Common Danger Means Closer Unity to Comradeship," Rev. E. T. Scragg preached on "Ten Most Tense Moments in This Century" to a large congregation at Wesley United church on Sunday.

Rev. Scragg outlined ten "tense moments" prior to the outbreak of the present hostilities in 1939 to show that each case served as a medium of closer unity to comradeship of man.

He listed the following ten incidents: Relief of Mafeking, 1900; death of Victoria, 1901; fate of the Antarctic expedition under Robert Scott, 1911; loss of the Titanic, 1912; outbreak of the war, 1914; armistice, 1918; Lindbergh's non-stop transatlantic flight, 1927; stock market crash, 1929; abdication of Edward VIII, 1936; the visit of the King and Queen to Canada 1939.

Getting Around

with JOHN OLIVER

AS Christmas draws rapidly near and activity around the home as well as in the stores gears up to a climax, two main points in connection with the festivities are driven home forcefully and vigorously. One is that Christmas is mainly for the children and the second is that a great part of the pleasure of the celebration comes in the preparation and anticipation.

It is apparent that unless the children are allowed to get into the exciting rush of it too, they hardly absorb the real spirit of the season. They can learn a great deal as well as have an exciting time of it. This is noticeable in the schools, where the various rooms form committees for entertainment, refreshments and other phases of the Christmas party just before classes adjourn for the holidays. The students take a greater interest in the events when they are in the thick of the intense round of activity.

At home, the children like to either take a lead or help, in putting up the Christmas tree and decorating same. They derive no study out the kind of gifts that will please each individual and at the same time prove the most practical. While they don't always prefer the most practical presents for themselves, they insure that others obtain things of a utilitarian nature.

They may think at first of sending a towel or some cloth to grandmother 'way back in Nova Scotia or Ontario, but when they reflect on the special package and postage, which would prove a drain on their budget, they probably conclude by sending a book or some hankies, on which transportation costs are low. Wise parents can use the Christmas season to deflect children's minds from the idea of giving someone a present just because a present is expected from that particular person. The joy of giving can be inculcated in the child mind at this time of the year.

As a matter of fact, children can extract as much genuine enjoyment from visualizing the extent to which their Uncle Bill will like his new pair of socks—because they are the kind he likes best of all—as they can from anticipating what they will find on or under the tree for themselves. The kind of giving that appeals to children is that in which there is a personal element—giving to kids less fortunately situated than themselves. A child who has no brothers or sisters with whom to share joys, especially requires experience in dividing playthings.

Naturally, children are not taken in as full-fledged, full-time helpers in Christmas preparations from the date they can crawl. It takes time for parents to include them in everything. At first, they may be more of a hindrance than a help. But the season is mainly theirs, and admitting them into partnership in the preparations is the only way to show them that each member of the household should assume some responsibility. They don't need much time to find out that the more they put into Christmas, the more it means.

Through The Mill

Second-hand cutlery is always suspect, particularly when the whole set offered for sale consists of one table knife, one fork and one spoon. And then if the "salesman" picks a couple of alert detectives as his "prospects" there's certain to be a few questions asked.

That, in brief, was the kind of jackpot that an old offender found himself in Friday when he pleaded not guilty to a charge of vagrancy. Two detectives testified accused had tried to "peddle" the knife, fork and spoon to them in a downtown cafe. Accused had become quite saucy when the officers inquired where the cutlery had come from. He had even told the detectives it was "none of your business."

This kind of a reply is always poorly received by law enforcement officers. They protested that the whole affair was very much their business. Later they asked accused just what kind of work he pursues. His answer to this question didn't satisfy. The whole unpleasantness terminated in court Monday with a term of three months in jail being imposed on accused. He has had six previous convictions for vagrancy.

Fine of $10 and costs was imposed on a former soldier for wearing a military uniform without authority. Accused pleaded he had not had time to purchase other clothing since his discharge. A charge of intoxication against the same man was withdrawn by the crown.

For a traffic violation a young man was fined $5 and costs with the option of seven days in jail. For failing to have a chauffeur's license, accused was fined an additional $2 and costs with the alternative of serving four days in jail.

$16,606 Is Asked For Fire Injury

Supreme court action seeking $16,606 special and general damages against My Valet and Dollar Cleaners started in Supreme Court Monday before Mr. Justice G. B. O'Connor. Plaintiffs to the action are Mrs. Grace Helen Cline, Hinton, suing in her own behalf and in behalf of her infant son, James V. Cline.

The court action arises out of a fire at the rear of the defendants' premises, 9252 104A avenue, in which the infant plaintiff received burns which resulted in permanent disfigurement of his face.

The fire was caused, it is alleged, through the negligence of the defendants in leaving an uncovered receptacle in which was placed an inflammatory liquid. This liquid, it is alleged, was set afire by another youngster who was playing on the property of the defendants. The hearing is proceeding.

and crop production, it was announced Monday by Board officials. A meeting of the Alberta cereal variety committee also will be held at the University on Dec. 17, to consider experimental and research information with respect to varieties of cereals suitable to the various crop production zones in this province. A meeting of the fertilizer committee will be held at the office of O. S. Longman, provincial field crops commissioner, at 10 a.m. Dec. 18, to consider and examine experimental evidence compiled during the year with respect to fertilizer.

Nippon's Military Moves Scored From City Pulpit By Rev. J. MacBeath Miller

Japan was described as "an overgrown boy" in need of, and certain to receive "a good spanking" in the next two years, by the Rev. J. MacBeath Miller, M.A., B.D., in an address on "The Japanese Hallucination" at First Presbyterian Church Sunday evening.

The Japanese, under the influence of ancestor and dynasty worship, coupled with imperial militaristic ambitions, have developed a power complex far beyond their physical capacity to attain, the minister declared. He predicted they would be a sadly disillusioned race within a few years.

At the same time Rev. Mr. Miller stated that the Christian nations must bear considerable responsibility for the chaos in the Pacific today.

"We called our civilization the Christian civilization. We did a little, in the Orient but we did not do enough.

MANY CHRISTIANS

"We whispered potent words into the ears of a sleeping giant. Then we let him get up and walk away," the minister stated. There are few more glorious pages in the history of Christian missionary work than those written in Japan. Tonight there are 200,000 Japanese Christians who are suffering bitter persecution for their faith.

"No nation has ever so bitterly resisted Christianity. No people have more intensely received the Christian faith," the preacher declared. He then described some of the heroic Christian figures among the Japanese.

Industrially Japan has advanced in 50 years as far as the western

Recruiting In City Is Slack States Officer

Recruiting for the 33rd quota of reinforcements for the Canadian Army (A) was slack as office doors opened Monday, according to Lt.-Col. Alan H. Elliott, officer commanding No. 13A District Depot. There were six recruits ready to go before medical boards at the opening of examinations for the day. On Saturday, 30 men went before the boards.

All branches of the service require men, said Lt.-Col. Elliott. There are excellent opportunities for men desiring to enlist in the artillery, engineers, signals, anti-aircraft, anti-tank, armored units, army service, medical and ordnance corps and infantry.

In addition men are urgently required for No. 1 Base Ordnance Corps, the 104th Anti-Tank Battery, R.C.A., and No. 17 Cavalry Field Ambulance, all units being mobilized for the active service force.

Tradesmen are particularly in demand, but Lt.-Col. Elliott pointed out that physically-fit men will be welcome, even though they have no previous trade training as, in cases where this is deemed advisable, army trade schools will provide it.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

Recognition of Turkey by the United States as a nation entitled to lease-lend materials from America prompted the Inquiring Reporter to seek opinions on this U.S. action.

THE ANSWERS

GERALD O'CONNOR, K.C., barrister: It would appear that the schemes of Franz Von Papen, Germany's ace political blackmailer, have failed to bring Turkey to the Axis side. His job was to try to win from Turkey an avenue through that country to oil fields in the Caucasus and the middle east. His blackmail technique was of no service to him in the friendship Turkey holds for Britain and Soviet Russia.

G. W. AUXIER, barrister: It is quite apparent that the British are confident of Turkey's friendship for they have been permitting various supplies to go to Turkey. They could not afford to do that if they saw a real danger of Turkey falling into the Axis camp and the supplies becoming available to the Nazi army.

GORDON HURLBURD, salesman: Action by President Roosevelt in directing the lease-lend administrator to see that the defence needs of the United States and Turkey are filled as fast as possible is the strongest indication that the British and U.S. leaders feel certain that Turkey will not yield to any German schemes or pressure brought on its government by Herr Von Papen. It would appear the allies have scored a diplomatic victory in this arena, but it also points to an attempt by the Axis to get to the Caucasus and Egypt through Turkey.

Ministers On Way To Ottawa

Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer, and J. F. Percival, deputy provincial treasurer, left Sunday night for Ottawa, where, next Thursday, they will confer with Hon. J. L. Ilsley, minister of finance, and other Dominion government officials, on proposals where-by the Dominion will take over the entire income and corporation taxation fields for the duration of the war. The conference will be attended by provincial treasurers of all provinces.

It is expected that uniform agreements will be submitted to all provinces so as to make matters as near alike as possible. Provinces concerned are: Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia.

As compensation for withdrawing from these two fields, the province will receive from the Dominion about $4,000,000 a year, representing the combined revenue from these two taxes on the basis of 1940.

It is expected that the agreement will be ratified in time for enabling legislation to be passed by the Dominion and all legislatures at their next sessions.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

There are few things as disconcerting to a parent as to be talked to rudely by a child.

There are two types of rudeness, those universal attempts of the child to deflate the parents by calling them names, and the child's honest expression of his feelings toward a parent who is being unfair to her child but resents being told about it.

The parent who feels secure in her position as head of the household and who knows that age and wisdom do give her a natural superiority can overlook the first type of rudeness. She need not care if the child calls her a "nut" or a "dumbbell" because she knows she isn't one. She can smile at such childlike exaggerations and her smile will be far more pointed than a sharp answer.

But, when the child sees through her weaknesses and shows them up in his rude accusations, one can understand how helpless a mother feels.

Naturally she feels guilty when a child's response to her scolding is "You're mean to me. You're a mean mama."

The whole point is, if a child's criticisms and rudeness are hitting home, there is only one course of action. Look yourself in the face. Are you being mean, unjust, dictatorial, punitive until the child is driven to use his tongue as his only weapon against you?

Rudeness may be indicative of the natural envy the inferior child feels toward the superior adult or it may be the honest, unvarnished truth about a parent expressed in a tactless way.

Our leaflet, What to do Instead of Spank, will aid you in deciding how to meet problems you are bound to face with your child. Send for it today by simply enclosing a three cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.—Y

4-Cabin Building At Calgary Auto Camp Destroyed

CALGARY, Dec. 14—(CP)—Damage estimated at $2,000 was done Sunday night by a fire which almost completely destroyed a four-cabin building and its contents at an auto camp, before being extinguished by city firemen.

Only one of the cabins in the building was occupied, and its occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Lougheed, of Creston, and their four children were away at the time of the fire. Some of their personal belongings were included in the goods destroyed.

Origin of the fire was unknown.

Minute Make-Ups

If your eyes are small and deep set, you can, by make-up create the illusion of greater size. Arch the eyebrows a trifle lower than they naturally grow. Be sure to use caution in removing a few of the hairs in the eyebrows at the upper dege.

Now accent the eyebrows at the lower edge by filling in with quick strokes of your eyebrow pencil. Apply mascara to the tips of the lashes. The deep-set eyes require very little eyeshadow. Keep it away from the inner corner next to the nose. Soft-colored eyeshadows, such as deep purple, dark blue and bronze-green are most flattering.

Christmas Songs Feature Club Recital On Saturday Afternoon

Thoroughly in keeping with the spirit and atmosphere of the season, the regular meeting of the Women's Musical Club at the Masonic Temple Saturday afternoon, was devoted to Christmas music Carols and other works appropriate to the occasion were heard, carols ever welcome in their simplicity and direct appeal.

This was the final club meeting in the calendar year. The next regular gathering will be on Saturday, Jan. 17, when the annual guest recital will be given

NARRATOR

Mrs. Gilbert M. Blackstock was the narrator of the afternoon and gave a brief sketch outlining the origin and development of carols and stressed the valuable place they fill in the Christmas festivities Later she gave a resume of how that most popular carol, Silent Night, Holy Night was written and gave an account of its first performance, more than 120 years ago.

The Erskine Church Girls' Choir sang George Foxy's Hark How Sweetly the Bells! William Stickley's arrangement of Ruth Bowker's Bethlehem and the well known It Came Upon the Midnight Clear, by R. S. Willis. The choir, abundantly supplied with young, fresh, appealing voices gave an excellent account of itself, maintaining balance, blend and enbleson at all times.

SOLOIST

Miss Lutie Jessup, whose appearances are all too few, sang Teresa Del Riego's A Star Was His Candle and Ernest Newton's The First Christmas Morn To a ripe musicianship, Miss Jessup added clear enunciation and a voice of fine texture, pure quality and excellent intonation.

A highlight of the program was provided by the Tait Family Ensemble. Under the watchful eye and careful direction of Mrs. Tait, who, before she won laurels as a composer and the mother and director of these talented children, was the captain and a star defence player with the Commercial Grads basketball team, the family gave a series of numbers that won a prolonged ovation which necessitated temporary suspension of the club's "no encore" rule.

Mrs. Tait was at the piano. Four splendid young boys and two talented girls made up the string ensemble. The group played Shubert's Lullaby, Brahms' Cradle Song, Severn's La Brunette waltz and a selection of Christmas songs, beneath the Holly, arranged by Seredy-Tocaben.

PLAYS SPLENDIDLY

The ensemble played splendidly Talent prevails in quantity in this group, Mrs. Tait's own Peggy is a lady who acted as concertmaster and who displayed a splendid tone and excellent intonation, together with a faculty of assisting in wielding the whole into a homogeneous whole, to the youngest of the family, who displayed no little promise on the cello. The older of the two boys on the cello, who was assisted several violas, acquitted himself most artistically.

Appearance of this group was most welcome and although the fact that it is a family compact works in its favor, yet there is genuine merit present which enables to stand aside from sentiment

Mrs. Tait, Peggy and Wilma van Deelan were the afternoon's capable accompanists.—J. O.

Ask them to take YOUR PARK—JASPER PARK out of the "ORPHAN" class

This is an urgent call to every citizen of Central and Northern Alberta for immediate and united action. In Jasper Park we have a precious asset—our finest scenic wonderland in the world—but its development may soon wrongly neglected. The status of the TOURIST TRAFFIC and TOURIST DOLLARS will continue to be lost to us all until this is rectified.

U.S. Bombers Damage 2 Jap Troop Vessels

By R. P. CRONIN

MANILA, Dec. 15.—(AP)—United States army bombers, resisting Japanese attempts to reinforce troops landed at Legaspi, on the southeastern tip of Luzon island, 50 miles from Manila, heavily damaged two Japanese transports yesterday, United States army headquarters reported today.

Announcement of the new American successes followed by 24 hours an official bulletin declaring that during the first week of the war U.S. army bombers sank four Japanese transports and badly damaged three more off northern Luzon, where the invaders effected landings at several places.

Japanese air raiders, meanwhile, returned to the attack on Luzon, sweeping over the Manila area about noon (9 p.m. M.S.T. Sunday) and dropping bombs which a brief communique said fell in the vicinity of Nichols field.

HEAVY JAP LOSSES

The communique, issued at 4 p.m. (1 a.m., M.S.T.), said enemy activities throughout the day were confined entirely to the air.

Four Japanese fighter planes were shot down during yesterday's action off Legaspi, a communique declared.

The picture evoked by these succeeding announcements, coupled with reports of successes achieved by Netherlands submarines off Malaya, was one of heavy Japanese losses.

The situation in general in the Philippines, which Lt.-Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said Sunday was "well in hand both on the ground and in the air," was described officially this morning as unchanged.

Unofficial reports said Japanese forces established around Vigan, on the Luzon west coast 200 miles north of Manila, had sent out patrols during the week-end in an attempt to widen their foothold.

Australia Seeks More Planes For Orient Fighting

CANBERRA, Dec. 16.—(Tuesday)—(AAP)—The Federal government was believed early today to be making strong representations to the British government for co-operative action to strengthen immediately British air power in Malaya and the Far East.

Simultaneously plans were being prepared for a big expansion of aircraft production in Australia, and also for use of a aircraft for seaward defence on a much larger scale than hitherto contemplated.

Ministers were perturbed at newspaper reports that British air strength in Malaya does not appear to be decisive.

Ontario Studying Lowering Of Age School Attendance

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—(CP)—The Ontario government is considering lowering the school attendance age below 16 years, the present limit, Premier Hepburn said today. It is likely the age will be lowered to 15.

"Some action will be taken in view of shortage of troops, manpower, apprentices in industry and help on the farms," Mr. Hepburn declared.

While in Edmonton he is visiting with his wife, Mrs. Howey, the former Miss Winifred Marchant, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Marchant, 12149 97 street.

First U.S. Heroes In Pacific War

At left, above, is First Lieut. Boyd D. Wagner, U. S. Army Air Corps, who was named by General Douglas MacArthur for gallantry in single-handed attack on a Japanese air detachment at Aparri, Luzon, during Japanese attempts to land reinforcements there. Lt. Wagner shot down two Jap planes, attacked 12 others on the ground and left five of them burning. At right is Captain Colin P. Kelly, Jr., who is credited with the sinking of the Japanese battleship Haruna. Capt. Kelly scored three direct bomb hits on the Jap ship. She later went to the bottom. General MacArthur revealed that Captain Kelly lost his life, but how the gallant captain died was not revealed.

Alberta Stock Is Outstanding

The International Show at Chicago is the largest fat stock show in the world and, when Alberta's cattle are exhibited there and take prizes, they are in the "show window" of the North American livestock world, members of the Kiwanis Club were told Monday by Dr. R. D. Sinclair of the University of Alberta.

Dr. Sinclair returned last week from Chicago where he attended the international show. He described the show in his address.

"I left Chicago the Friday before the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor," he said, "and I can assure you the United States was in the war before the Japanese attacked."

The boys' and girls' clubs were a big feature of the show, he said. These clubs are an important part of the education of rural young people and the members compete with the grown-up exhibitors and win prizes in many cases.

Speaking of Alberta's winnings, he said that the Hereford steers from the University of Alberta won firsts in two classes, while awards were won in many of the other classes by exhibits from here.

Cattle winning prizes in this show, he said, are a great advertisement for Alberta.

Two Injured In Queer Mishap

Smoke from burning brush alongside the Jasper-Edmonton highway, three miles west of the city, resulted in a peculiar mixup of collisions that caused injuries to a woman and a young boy at about 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Mrs. Henry Carmina, 9731 93 street, was taken to the Misericordia hospital with a deep cut in the forehead and a youth named Beckman was treated for slight bruises in the General hospital and later released. The Beckman boy is the son of Arthur Beckman of Spruce Grove.

According to R.C.M.P. reports a car operated by William Robertson of Stony Plain was proceeding west. He stopped to view brush burning along the highway and a car operated by Arthur Beckman of Spruce Grove collided with the rear of the parked car.

When the two cars were stopped a third machine, operated by Henry Carmina, 9731 93 street, coming from the east, stopped. The truck, driven by Gus Arndt, 6520 104 street, crashed into the Carmina car. Mrs. Carmina was injured. The Beckman car was also involved and the young Beckman boy slightly bruised.

R.C.M.P. are investigating.

Independents To Meet In Calgary

Members of the general executive committee of the Independent Citizens' Association will be held at the Palliser hotel, Calgary, on Wednesday, according to Alfred Speakman, M.L.A. for Red Deer, house leader of the Independent group in the legislature and convener of the meeting.

The executive consists of 19 members, of whom 12 were appointed at the Independent convention held at the Macdonald hotel on Nov. 22. The Independent members were authorized to name an additional seven members to bring the total to 19.

The Calgary meeting probably will discuss appointment of a new leader, vice-president and secretary of the association and these officials may be appointed Wednesday.

Further discussion will revolve around opening of a permanent headquarters for the association either in this city or Calgary.

Headed by Mr. Speakman, most of the Edmonton members of the committee will go to Calgary on Tuesday.

Among others going are D. M. Duggan and J. Percy Page, independent members of the legislature for this city.

George MacLachlan, M.L.A. for Pembina and party whip in the house, also is expected to go south Tuesday.

Nazis Blowing Up Own Wounded In Moscow Retreat

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(CP)—The Moscow radio, heard in London today, said the Germans are retreating so fast on the Moscow front that they are blowing up their wounded because there is no time to evacuate them.

The radio said that in the village of Osereteskoye a school which had been turned into a hospital was blown up when full of Nazi soldiers. The wounded were placed on the ground floor and a Nazi officer gave the signal for the explosion, the radio claimed.

Australia Not To Send More Units Overseas

CANBERRA, Dec. 15.—(AAP)—The Australian government has no intention of sending members of the militia forces to any points outside of Australia except to Commonwealth territory or to territory under control of the Commonwealth, Minister Francis Forde announced today.

He added that the militia is required for the defence of Australia and a substantial reservoir of Australian Imperial Force recruits for the Middle East and A.I.F. camps in England.

The federal government was reported to be reviewing many senior militia officers' appointments and an early reshuffle was anticipated. It was expected that young officers from the Middle East who now are experienced warfare veterans would be brought back to positions in the Commonwealth for training purposes.

Meanwhile, with increased military preparations continuing throughout the country, many thousands of enlistments were reported to have resumed training, and plans have been laid to evacuate school children from metropolitan areas if necessary.

Gas Rations On Quarterly Basis

OTTAWA, Dec. 15—(CP)—Gasoline rationing will be on a quarterly basis, it was learned today.

Under plans which Munitions Minister Howe announced last week would go into effect April 1, motorists in all Allotment Groups except one will be required to use them in a specified three-month period.

It is understood the coupons will be issued for a year, but will be divided into quarters to expire June 30, Sept. 30, Dec. 31, and March 31. The adoption of such a plan will prevent motorists from saving their unused gasoline quota for use in summer months.

The amount of gasoline motorists are likely to receive is not expected to be announced until shortly before the rationing becomes effective and will depend on the available supply at that time.

New Well For Bonanza Field To Be Drilled

Prospecting what is believed to be the largest potential crude oil field in Alberta, a new well will be drilled early next year in the Bonanza field, Peace River country, it was announced Monday by F. I. Batchelor, of Edmonton, member of the syndicate in charge of the operation.

The Bonanza field is on the Alberta side of the Alberta-B.C. border, near Pouce Coupe.

Atlas Investments, Ltd., Vancouver, have taken over oil and gas rights on a large block of acreage in the Bonanza area from Pouce Coupe Oils, Ltd., the Alberta government and Calgary interests, and have agreed to start their first well early in the new year, Mr. Batchelor said.

Drilling equipment will be shipped north sometime in January and drilling will start as soon as weather permits.

R. A. Brossard, president of Atlas Investments, visited the area in the latter part of October in company with Joseph S. Irwin, consulting geologist of Calgary, and Mr. Batchelor, when the area was checked and the drilling site picked.

Atlas Investments are controlled by Clifton C. Brown and Co., Ltd., interests, large Turner Valley operators.

There will be associated with this undertaking two other Turner Valley companies and Montreal interests.

This oil field is between Grande Prairie and Fort St. John, on the air route to Alaska and, if oil is found in substantial quantities, it will be a most important development at this time, Mr. Batchelor said.

An official of the Guardian Oil Company, which has 11a head office in Grande Prairie and has holdings in the Bonanza area, has advised Mr. Batchelor that his company intends to make a special test at its well as soon as the proper testing equipment arrives. The Guardian well, drilled some time ago, is owned by Peace River country men and its financing has largely been local.

For some time oil has been coming up with the drilling fluid at the Guardian well and tests by the Alberta Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board show that it has a 37 Baume gravity and is of excellent quality.

Our Boarding House — Major Hoople — Out Our Way — —By Williams

Dorothy Dix Says:

Now when the wole world is crying for help it does not seem as if any one should need be told how to kill time. Nevertheless, there isn't a day that I don't get letters from idle and bored women asking how they can fill in their useless hours and find something interesting to do. Sometimes the writers are rich women, fed up with social gaieties, who feel that they would scream if they had to go to one more night club. Sometimes the letters are from college girl graduates who do not know what to do with themselves now that they are emancipated from school routine. Sometimes they are from brides, who have been competent business women, who find that running a two-by-four flat is like putting a hundred horsepower Diesel engine to pulling a one-horse load, and who want to find an outlet for their surplus energy.

Dorothy Dix

And as I read these letters I think that the greatest need in modern civilization is to put this woman power that is being wasted to work, but the question of how to do it has been difficult to answer, for nothing is more futile than playing at a job and making believe that you are busy when you know you are not. To get any kick out of work you must be doing something that you know is constructive and important and that accomplishes results.

So to those women who do not need to work to earn money, but who need it for their soul's sake and for their obligation to help those who are less fortunate than themselves, I would say: Go into any one of the many philanthropic and civic organizations that are crying out for help. They need you as much as you need them.

There is the Red Cross, whose work will never be done as long as there are battles and cyclones and earthquakes and fires and floods and misery and suffering in the world. There are the War Relief Societies that need aid in their efforts to clothe the naked and feed the hungry and find shelter for those whose houses have been wrecked over their heads, their possessions lost and they are left homeless and comfortless, to face the rigors of a cold winter.

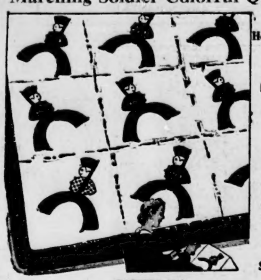

Don't wait to be asked to join one of these. Wish yourself on them. The women who run these clubs are all busy and do not have time to go out hunting up prospects, but they will fall on our neck with joy if you will volunteer to become one of them.

There is no way in which a woman who is a stranger in a new town can get into the running so quickly as by joining a club and showing herself to be a worker. All she has to do is to read the local newspaper and when she sees that a new defense class is starting, or the Red Cross sends out an appeal for help, just leap to the telephone and call up the woman who is at the head of it and offer her assistance. She will be regarded as an answer to prayer and taken into the fold at once.

Join any one of them. They will teach you how to do the work that really helps. They will make you a little sister to all the world. They will give you a new interest in life and be a first aid to happiness to you, for we only find happiness in making others happy.

Ham Is Slow; Fruit Cake Is Quickie

What To Do

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Are you going to make your home "Christmas-y" this year? Spend a little time and plan your indoor decorations well. There are so many things you can do to bring Santa Claus indoors and here are a few suggestions.

Put fireproof cotton snow on the mantle and fix up eight celluloid reindeers to a sleigh. Put Santa, in his red suit, in the sleigh—attach red ribbon reins and use a background of evergreens.

Another attractive mantle decoration is a Winter bare branch of a tree which has been caleimined pure white. Place this flat against the back of the mantle—and tie on colorful Christmas tree ornaments.

If you have an exposed stairway—tie bunches of evergreens of holly to every other stair tread and place a couple of bright Christmas tree balls in the centre of the greenery.

Don't forget a big bunch of mistletoe, tied with a red bow. Be sure this is in a convenient—but not obvious—place for those who want to steal a Christmas kiss.

Ships Blow Up

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(CP)—A German supply ship "blew up and disappeared" when hit three times by bombs off the Norwegian coast Sunday morning, Air Ministry sources said Sunday. The ship was attacked from mast height by a Hollander flying a Hudson bomber.

The Christmas festive meats are usually turkey, goose, suckling pig, rib roast or glazed ham. The choice is a matter of taste and pocketbook.

BAKED CHRISTMAS HAM

If a pre-cooked ham is used, follow the directions on the wrapper around the ham in baking. If a smoked ham is used, scrub ham with a brush. Soak 12 to 24 hours in cold water to cover. Drain. Place skin side up in open roaster. Insert meat thermometer in ham so that bulb will be in centre of ham, but not touching bone. Bake in slow oven (300 deg. F.) allowing 30 minutes per pound for small or half-hams, or cook until final reading on meat thermometer is 170 deg. F. Take ham from oven and remove skin.

Soak Virginia ham 12 hours in cold water to cover. Trim rusty edges and scrub with brush. Place skin side up in kettle and cover ham with boiling water. Cook covered over low heat, simmering very gently until tender, allowing about 30 minutes per pound. Uncover and let cool in stock 24 hours. Take from liquid, remove skin, bake and glaze.

Here's a fruit cake than can be baked in 25 minutes and eaten as soon as it is cool.

LAST MINUTE FRUIT CAKE

One and one-third cups (15-ounce can) sweetened condensed milk, 1 cup chopped walnut meats, 1½ pound (3 cups) shredded coconut, 1 pound (2 cups) pitted dates, coarsely chopped.

Thoroughly blend sweetened condensed milk, chopped walnut meats, shredded coconut and coarsely chopped dates. Pack in bulbtours loaf pan 8x4x3 inches). Bake in moderately hot oven (375 deg. F.) 25 minutes or until brown. Remove from pan and allow to cool thoroughly. Decorate with a tree of frosting with tiny silver, green and red candies for trimming. Cut in thin slices when serving.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Grapefruit juice, oatmeal, cinnamon toast, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Creamed ham on enriched toast, cabbage and apple salad, sugar cookies, tea, milk.

SPECIAL CHRISTMAS DINNER: Consomme, tossed crackers, roast turkey, chestnut stuffing, giblet gravy, stuffed baked potatoes, quick frozen green lima beans, cranberry molds, romaine and sliced radish salad, plum pudding, hard sauce, coffee, milk.

McCoy Health Service

We have heard so much from those who complain that they have a "weak" stomach or a "delicate" stomach, that the average person has the idea that the stomach is a delicate organ prone to break down at the slightest reason. As a matter of fact, the normal healthy stomach is possessed of remarkable strength.

You will gain a good idea of how strong your stomach is by counting up that in one year it handles more than one thousand meals. Given a reasonable amount of care, the stomach will do its work well, but even the strongest organ must break down after years of abuse. Once this occurs, the patient will then develop symptoms of acute or chronic indigestion, which symptoms are likely to become worse after he has eaten unwisely.

Generally the patient with stomach trouble says that the stomach is "sour." This is usually due to an excess stomach acid in an acute attack of indigestion. The patient may feel nauseated, may desire to vomit, says that the stomach feels heavy, and may develop such symptoms as dizziness, blurring of the vision, coldness of the hands, and a sensation of dull distress within the stomach. In some cases there may be a sharp colicky pain. Unusual amounts of gas are present in the stomach itself, and this generally leads to belching. The patient says the stomach is "sour" principally because a sour or bitter-tasting fluid rises into the throat.

However, he may believe it is sour because the vomiting of the last meal brings up material which has an acid taste in the mouth. He forgets that the hydrochloric acid in the stomach would normally make the food material taste sour, and that such a state should be expected.

After the digestive disturbance has reached the chronic stage, such symptoms as a coated tongue, excessive gas, lack of appetite, a burning or gnawing sensation, and a slow loss in weight, usually occur.

The cause of stomach trouble must be looked for in those habits of eating which are incorrect. Eating too much, eating in a hurry, eating in between meals, and using fried or greasy foods together with the use of foods difficult to digest, must all be considered as possible causes. Unwise combinations of food which fill the stomach with incompatible mixtures, are still another cause.

Read this pencil and underline any of these habits of eating which you honestly believe may be playing a part in your digestive upsets. The important thing to do is to change those habits to good ones. Try to keep your meals simple, eat at regular hours, and eat only when you are tired, and omit the use of much liquid with your meals and you will probably find that your stomach will respond in a satisfactory way.

A rest from solid food is often of great value in treating both acute and chronic cases. Skip a few meals and give the overworked digestive organs a physiological rest. You will then resume eating with improved powers of digestion. Your Dreams Are Dramas

About You

"Wolves" of the Subconscious

Deep slumber—but is it so peaceful? And that hint of a smile—a pleasant dream, perhaps?

The sleeper dreams of hiding something behind a screen. Harmless enough such a dream seems, but as is often the case with dreams, in it a "wolf of the subconscious" wears sheep's clothing.

These wolves of the subconscious are hates, fears, desires which the conscious mind doesn't realize. In sleep they express themselves in images, often pleasant ones, but how revealing those images are when interpreted!

The sleeper who is dreaming of a screen has recently broken with a friend who she says isn't loyal. She hides her true motive—hatred based on envy. How much happier she would be if she would recognize her secret feeling, banish it for worthier ones.

To understand your own dreams, learn to read images, symbols. Have you dreamed of falling? You fear a loss of security. To dream of climbing a ladder implies an overwhelming ambition. Books in a dream hint a yearning for culture.

Find the meanings of many other typical dreams in our 32-page booklet. A famous psychologist explains images, symbols, helps you to get clues to your hidden self.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "The Meaning of Dreams" to Home Service, The Edmonton Bulletin, 60 Front Street West, Toronto, Ontario. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Please allow a week or ten days for delivery.

Standard Sizes Women's Army Non-Existent

By PATRICIA CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA, Dec. 15—(CP)—Venus de Milo as a specimen of feminine form was all right in her day but it's questionable whether her counterpart—with arms of course—would be much of a standout in the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

The fact is that in the C.W.A.C. once minimum height and weight and health qualifications have been met, there is no size regularity of the Canadian girl. Ability counts, curves or no curves.

The 800 recruits already outfitted are proof of this. Minimum height is five feet but some of the recruits are six-footers. Weight must be in conformity with recognized health charts for height and age.

"We have 19 different sizes in tunics and skirts for the girls but 15 per cent of them need to be altered in some way so it is obvious there is no regulation of size," said Capt. B. A. Snow, officer in charge of the Canadian Women's Army Corps ordnance depot.

"Sometimes the sleeves are too long, the tunic too wide, the shoulders too narrow, the skirt too long, too short, too wide or too narrow."

Uniforms for the C.W.A.C. are all supplied from the central ordnance depot in the basement of the new supreme court building here.

Fifteen standard sizes of shoes in four different widths are available. Most of them take size 6, 6½ or 7 but—and say it quietly—some size 9 shoes have been issued.

Mr. Bruhn, who only took over his cabinet post in the new Liberal-Conservative coalition government last week, was removed from a train when seized with the attack. He was travelling with Premier John Hart and Attorney-General R. L. Maitland, K.C., at the time. Mr. Hart and Mr. Maitland are enroute to Ottawa, but Mr. Bruhn was on his way to Sicamous, where he had intended to attend to private business matters.

GIVE THEATRE TICKETS FOR CHRISTMAS

"Three Traveled East"

—By Ruth Ayers

SYNOPSIS

Two weeks before Christmas, Connie Dawson—attractive reporter on The Sentinel—starts to start on a special assignment to St. John's, Newfoundland, is told the New York Press Bureau has appointed a man instead. Connie's marriage to Jerry Marsh, piloting bombers to Britain, is scheduled for Jerry's Christmas furlough in the north. Flying to New York to see the bureau chief, storms ground Connie's plane in the bus her seat neighbor, J. J. Patterson, unwittingly confides that he is on the way to her job! Three-year-old Skippy's mother is left in hospital en route and "Pat" promises to deliver the boy to relatives in the east. Snowbound, the passengers find refuge in a schoolhouse. Waking from a nap, Connie learns that Pat is telephoning long distance. From a farmhouse she gives her story to the New York Press Bureau and flies to see the chief. When he refuses her the coveted assignment she resigns, and meets the bus to tell Pat it is still his. Pat's attitude to Connie is completely changed. Weary, disheartened, she sleeps and is wakened by the ringing of the telephone.

CHAPTER XXIV

LILA Ernest had read the card until even the few words on it were almost worn off.

"Skippy arrived at Connecticut address O.K. J. J. Patterson."

Nothing else. No letter since from the aunts.

She sat up in bed in the room at the end of the hall where they'd taken her when she suffered the relapse. Yes, Skippy had arrived safely in Connecticut but what had happened then? What had happened when the little boy with the yellow hair and the blue eyes had walked into the house where everything was kept neat as a pin—and where the two aunts, a little older since Lila had gone away—a little more erect, perhaps—had forgotten what it was to have someone young around?

"They're my own," she had tried to tell the sisters. "They'll love him—take care of him."

"Why, of course," her nurse had said.

But now Christmas was only a week and a day away. And here she was still in Mercy Hospital—still with the heart which hammered so hard it seemed as if it would beat all life from her. How could she reach Skippy by Christmas?

It was morning and she waited for the sun. Every day at this time the sister came in on her way from chapel—eyes shining, tranquil face aglow.

"I'm better this morning," Lila told the familiar white figure when her visitor appeared at the door. The nun smiled. "I know you are. You're going to be—just fine."

From spiritual to temporal could be only a step in this life as a nun in a big city hospital. So the sister had clipped everything in the papers which related to the marooned bus. She'd brought the first news story and the pictures of Skippy, smiling out of a blanket bundle.

Today, the news didn't concern Skippy directly but was about the girl reporter, Constance Dawson. There was a picture of her—such a pretty girl—and beside her a handsome young aviator.

"Christmas Chimes Ring Wedding Bells" was the caption over the picture.

She gave the clipping to Lila Ernest with the air of one who brings good tidings.

Lila read it, perplexed, trying to understand what it meant. This was the girl who'd sat with Pat Patterson—the girl with whom she'd talked in the bus terminal just before she'd keeled over.

She had thought a romance had sprung up between these two, the girl and the redhead. Perhaps she'd been right and there had been a romance and then the girl had gone her own way. That would account for the card with the curt message.

Lila reached out her hand to the sister. "I want to be with Skippy for Christmas," she whispered. "Please let me leave today."

Sister glanced at the chart and took the blue-veined hand. "No, not today," she said. "You're not quite strong enough yet to make the trip."

But Skippy—I'm afraid he's not happy. I'm afraid I was mistaken all the time."

She tried to say more but words were too difficult. What she was thinking about was the sun in the San Fernando Valley.

Why had she ever wanted to go back to the white Christmas of Connecticut?

She struggled up again, composing herself, making herself alert and sane and oh, quite capable. "You'll let me go soon, won't you?" she pleaded. "It's so—very important."

"Remember what I told you when the bus was marooned? I said you could reach your little boy first by prayer—and you did. And that I believed if you couldn't get to him for Christmas there would be some way we could bring him to you?"

"No—there isn't any way," Lila whispered. Soon now, she knew, it would be too late to reach him at all.

The nun was pulling the shades in the small white room. She was smoothing the sheets in the way she had which was so competent and comforting. She said, "You will not lose faith, for this is the time of year when prayers about a little boy must surely be answered."

A week until Christmas!

Janet Gregg, home in the little town in Missouri after the strange trip east which had never been completed, walked down the main street to the post office.

People greeted her — pleasant, everyday people. She'd become a heroine to them, the country school teacher who had turned a schoolhouse far away into a refuge for the snowbound.

Signs of Christmas were everywhere. Men were putting up a community Christmas tree by the bandstand in the square.

Janet slowed her steps. Even if there were no letter from George Haven, even if he hadn't seen her picture and the story about her, she could feel the trip east had been momentous. Looking back, she knew nothing she might have seen in New York would have been so thrilling as that moment when she'd erased the sign from the blackboard in the schoolhouse which had said—"Merry Christmas—School is closed until January 5." The bus travelers had come in with hope instead of despair—and that, after all, was Christmas itself.

Six days to Christmas. Connie was up early and dressed in the plaid sports suit which she had picked out for the honeymoon in St. John's. Well, it would do beautifully for the honeymoon in New York. With the beaver jacket and a Cossack hat, she was all set for the thrilling events ahead.

Today was the day when she and Jerry Marsh were to go to the Marriage License Bureau. And when one takes a step like that it is final, irrevocable. That's what she needed, something definite and firm under her feet. Then she would stop looking for a Christmas Spirit, Inc.—which wasn't any more.

She had tried to dismiss Pat completely from her mind, but it hadn't been easy.

It was a bothersome conscience, she decided. She had hurt him when she had phoned the story in from the farmhouse in the Alleghenies—hurt him more because she'd walked out on Skippy. Giving up the job would have been atonement enough for most people—but Pat Patterson didn't figure things as other people did.

"Let's get it over with," she warned herself and picked up the telephone receiver.

She called the Press Bureau and asked for Mr. Higgins. It was the first time she'd talked to him since the night of her arrival.

"I just wanted to know if everything is all set for Pat Patterson," she said.

"Yes, everything set."

"You like him?"

"First rate," Mr. Higgins said. "However, I don't think he is anything like the young man you described."

"No—?" Why had she probed into this again? Why did she care?

"Rather a hard-boiled newspaperman, I judge him. It surprises me that he ever let you scoop him."

"Is he on his way?" she heard herself asking.

"He is scheduled to leave today."

Then Connie Dawson swallowed her pride. "If you'll give me his address, I think I'll call and wish him good luck."

"Surely," the chief of the Press Bureau said and gave the name of a hotel, across town from her.

Connie wrote it down carefully. It was a place she'd never heard of—the sort of place, no doubt, where a poor young man from Dunbark City would be at home. Even if she called him, even if she went to see him, there wasn't anything she could say. She put the slip in her bag and went downstairs. Jerry Marsh was waiting for her.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

My most pleasant task each year is touring the country in behalf of the "Have-a-Heart-Take-a-Hand" cause of the Contract Bridge League. This year the various units of the league have raised thousands of dollars for the British American Ambulance Corps, but my hat goes off to Herbert Gerst at Norfolk, Virginia. At every tournament Herb takes time out to do his bit—and at the bridge table he also does his bit in playing hands skillfully.

Gerst, sitting South, won the first lead with the ace of diamonds. He led the heart and West put up the ace. West craftily led the pack of diamonds. Dummy trumped, and cashed the king of spades.

Then came the king of hearts, on which South discarded his low diamond. The nine of spades was led and ducked. West winning with the jack. All that remained for the defenders was the ace of clubs.

Simple as this hand may seem, the spade game was lost at several tables through inferior technique in declarer's play. And one bad game can wreck a tournament.

Deanna Durbin To Sing To Service Men In England

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Deanna Durbin, young Winnipeg-born screen star, said Sunday she would leave Tuesday or Wednesday en route to England to entertain service men and war workers during the Christmas season.

The 19-year-old singing star said she had accepted an invitation of Lord Halifax, the British ambassador, and that she and her producer-husband, Vaughn Paul, would be guests of the British embassy in Washington for a few days before flying to London.

"If I can help in the war effort, even in this small way," said Miss Durbin, "then I shall feel well repaid."

Cyclist Is Hurt, Trucks Crash Over Week-End

Collision between two light delivery trucks that turned one truck on its side and a cyclist knocked from his bicycle were the only traffic accidents of importance in the city over the week-end.

The cyclist, Darland "fowler of 9753 93 avenue, suffered a slight elbow and head bruise when he lost his balance and fell against trolley bus No. 104 at 93 avenue and 99 street at 7:10 p.m. Saturday. His injuries were not serious.

Fowler was riding north on 99 street. The trolley bus was behind him when the accident occurred, according to the police report.

COLLISION

The collision between the two light delivery trucks occurred at 83 avenue and 101 street at 12 noon, Saturday.

Lavernt Bradner, 9840 102 street, was driving a fish truck east on 83 avenue when a second truck, operated by Percy J. Young, 9127 77 avenue, came from the north. One of the trucks turned over on its side by the impact. No one was hurt.

Details Wartime Orders Received

Details of the wartime order dealing with salary fixing and cost-of-living bonus regulations, have been received from Ottawa by W. G. Skinner, Inspector of income tax for Edmonton district.

The order permits an employer to pay on his own volition a cost-of-living bonus to any employee above the rank of foreman who receives less than $3,000. It further states that compulsion in such cases falls under the jurisdiction of the national labor board.

The statement reads that an employer may grant a cost-of-living bonus based on the index as from October 1, 1941, but cannot grant any increased salary or wages.

It further adds that any person who on November 6, 1941, received a salary above $3,000, shall not be entitled to receive an increase in salary or any increase in the amount of the bonus except that paid prior to November 7, 1941.

Amounts paid into pension funds or as monetary Christmas gifts, provided they are not charged as an expense for tax purposes, should not be regarded as salary or bonus for purposes of the wartime order.

Special provisions are made in regard to contractual rights and any adjustments made between dates as from November 7, 1941. Verbal promises made to the employee prior to November 7, shall not be implemented in the order.

School boards will not be regarded as employers subject to the provisions of the order-in-council.

"Gracie" Delights Capacity Audience

An overflow audience of more than 1,500 enthusiastic citizens greeted Gracie Fields, world-famous star of the stage, screen and radio when she appeared at the Empire theatre Saturday for the second successive night in aid of the Navy League of Canada.

Miss Fields again performed her pre-eminent position as the outstanding entertainer in her chosen field of endeavor. Her sketches and skits ranged from the serious to the burlesque and everything in between. In each and every number she rose to great heights and the response from the audience left no doubt as to her popularity.

Assisting were the Edmonton Kiwanis Glee Club, a group of city Scottish dancers and pipers and the Macdonald hotel orchestra, conducted by Cecil Cameron. A. M. MacDonald was master of ceremonies.

Varsity Students To Provide For Needy Families

Needy families in outlying districts throughout the province will receive 12 hampers as Christmas presents from University of Alberta students. This was announced over the week-end by Bob Macbeth, president of the U. of A. students' union, and chairman of the Varsity Christmas fund which raised nearly $340 to buy the hampers.

Planned as part of the university students' war work for this term, the Christmas fund received money from raffles, radio request program, draws, donations, presentation of the Victoria High School year play, and a final carnival night Saturday in Convocation hall.

Nominations For Canadian Legion

Nominations for the position of officers and executive members for 1942, of the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Legion B.E.S.L., will be received at the last regular meeting of the branch scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday, J. H. Van Slyke, secretary-manager of the branch announced Monday.

Other legion activities during the month include their annual Christmas draw in the main hall at 8 p.m. Friday, an "Estaminet Nite" to be held in the canteen the same night, and the annual New Year's Eve dance and frolic on Dec. 31.

Sailor Is Home

Earl Dickie, R.C.N.V.R., arrived in Edmonton Sunday from Halifax to spend the Christmas holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. P. Dickie, at 10804 104 street.

Rationing Of Tires May Be Planned Move

new ones are purchased. These used tires are repaired, where necessary, and bought by other users.

This dealer stated that he believed most commercial users of tires had protected themselves in advance of the order. These would include bus operators, truckers, taxi operators and delivery services.

A major bus company official in the city stated that he did not feel the tire order would seriously affect the bus transportation business as it would be necessary to keep such commercial carriers operating.

"I think the reason for this cut-off on tire sales was to prevent people stocking up and that, after a full inventory of tires in the country is taken, there will be rationing," he said.

PRIVATE OWNERS

It is likely that any rationing which may be instituted will most seriously affect private car owners and that cars will be classified according to their uses, whether private or for business.

There are in Edmonton approximately 11,000 private automobiles, it was learned from the provincial license bureau.

The order for the time being prohibits sale of new tires for all vehicles except those used by the department of national defence. Included in the resirictions is the city police department.

The government's action was taken as result of the war in the Pacific which threatened to curtail rubber supplies from Malaya, Ceylon and the Netherlands East Indies.

It is possible that rationing will give only 300 pounds of rubber a week for civilian purposes.

With Christmas drawing near, heavy traffic between Edmonton and northern posts was reported by air transport companies. Heavy mail and express are loading the planes as Christmas gifts from the "outside" to those in the north.

Alf Caywood, United Air Services, arrived in Edmonton Saturday with three passengers, J. McLaughlin from Yellowknife, D. Macleod and L. Lamothe from Outpost Island. He returned north Sunday with a full load of mail and express and arrived in Yellowknife Monday morning.

Enemy Airplanes Over California

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15—(AP)—A formal United States army announcement that enemy planes apparently had flown over California put the entire state on an emergency basis today, by order of Gov. Culbert L. Olson.

"Enemy reconnaissance, if not bombing, planes are known to have passed along our coast and to have covered a part of the interior areas," the Governor said at Sacramento.

Enemy Waters Mined By R.A.F.

LONDON, Dec. 15—(CP)—The Royal Air Force mined German waters during the night, losing one plane during the operations, the air ministry announced today.

There was no indication of British raids on Germany or German-occupied territory, and the government disposed of Nazi air activity last night with a terse "nothing to report."

Blaze In Hotel Causes Damage

Fire, starting in the kitchen of the Grand hotel, 10266 103 street, at 12.50 p.m. Sunday caused considerable damage to furnishings and fixtures in the hotel and kitchen. The fire started either from an electric fan or cook stove in the kitchen and spread through a ventilator pipe from the kitchen to the hotel. There was grease in the pipe.

F. Capello, cook, stated he first saw the fire along some pipes in the kitchen. Furnishings and equipment, damaged by smoke and water, are fully insured, it was reported by Roy Stoyko, proprietor of the hotel. The building is owned by C. McLeod of Calgary.

Fire equipment from No. 1 hall, under Fire Chief James Macgregor, fought the blaze, using one line of hose.

Organ Recital

Prof. L. H. Nichols presented another in his series of University organ recitals at Convocation hall Sunday evening. He was assisted by Victor E. Graham, Calgary freshman at the U. of A. this term.

Japan Suffers Power Complex Minister Says

nations in about 1,000 years. It has adopted the science of the west and has used it to build a huge army and navy.

Its leaders have claimed that only Japan can lead the world.

ONLY SOLUTION

The Emperor of Japan is the only individual capable of leading the nations to peace, these fanatical leaders claim.

Although the story of Christian missionary work in Japan is a glorious one, the action of Christian industrialists has been anything but glorious. Whisky and cigarettes have flooded the Oriental markets and western armament manufacturers have waxed fat through sale of weapons to the Japanese, it was asserted by the minister.

The final and only solution lies in the acceptance of Christ by the world Christians must be prepared while war rages in the Pacific to renew the campaign to win the world for Christ when the struggle ceases and when the Japanese militarists have been crushed, Rev. Mr. Slade said.

Ultimate success or victory does not depend on leadership, but upon the effort of the "rank and file", Rev. S. C. West, locum tenens minister of Christ church, told the congregation on Sunday morning during the service.

Prayers were said, during the special service, for intercession for the British Empire and its allies.

Men of Christian faith, imbued with the leadership of God and the Holy Spirit, must realize that the end of the conflict does not rest only upon leadership. Christian men must not relax and depend upon experts to lead them through to victory, he said. "They must be truly democratic and, working together, put God's plan into action," he stated.

"There is too great a tendency, nowadays," he pointed out, "to look to all sorts of experts for solution of economic problems, and too great tendency to stop thinking altogether. The church when it was first established was formed of men who each had an individual task to perform and so today new fire must be put into the church and into the efforts of Christian men."

Without faith in God, he said, all the sacrifice which has been made and which will be made will be lost.
